WARSHIPS OF GERMANY AND ENGLAND OFF FOR NORTH SEA TO BATTLE

(SPECIAL CABLE DISPATCHES TO THE BOSTON AMERICAN.)

LONDON, Dec 2.—Telegraphing from Copenhagen, the Daily Mail's correspondent says: "It is reported that the German fleet has again steamed into the North Sea."

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 2.—Another British war fleet is reported to have put into the North Sea and is laying off Ostend.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—Press dispatches from Copenhagen to the effect that most of the German warships at Kiel have steamed out into the North Sea, presumably to give battle to the British in the open, aroused an intense feeling of expectancy throughout England today.

At the Admiralty, however, it was said that no official advices had been received as to extensive German marine operations. It is learned from an authentic source, however, the British battle fleets off the west coast of Scotland and off the north coast of Ireland have been notified by wireless to keep in readiness to proceed at once into the North Sea under a full head of steam.

SAYS SHE SLEW MAN IN DEFENSE

ALL RIVER, Dec. 2.—Mabel A. Scudder of Taunton told a Bristol county jury, in her trial for second degree murder today, that she shot her brother-in-law, Edgar C. Scudder, in self defence. She said that the latter-in-law had thrice previously insulted her, but that she had not told her husband, Bradford Scudder, for fear of making trouble between the brothers.

Bradford Scudder, husband of the defendant, is in the Boston office of the Massachusetts Fish and Game commission. He and his wife have one-half of a double house in Taunton. Edgar C. Scudder, Bradford's brother, a bachelor, occupied the other part of the house.

In preliminary answers Mrs. Scudder said that on Monday, April 13, she was alone in her apartment, her husband being in Boston. She had bought a hook to fasten her room door, she said, but was unable to put it on effectively.

"This was due, according to subsequent testimony, to her brother-in-law coming into her home three times.

A plain hint of what Mrs. Scudder's story would be was given by her counsel in outlining the defence. He said that he would show that she shot in self defence.

Mrs. Scudder testified that she was feeling somewhat ill that day, so she went to bed. Then she continued:

"Edgar Scudder came in to my apartment while I was asleep. I was awakened by him."

Mrs. Scudder then described her brother-in-law as acting as though he would attack her. She continued:

REACHED FOR PISTOL.

"I was terrified. I reached for my husband's revolver, which was under the pillow, thinking that the sight of it would scare him away.

"I grabbed the revolver and he grabbed my wrist. In the struggle the revolver exploded.

"Edgar Scudder turned and staggered out of the room. I sat up in bed. I got up and went into the kitchen and saw him lying on the floor. Neighbors ran in. I said: 'I've shot Edgar. Send for a doctor.'"

Edgar Scudder died in about ten minutes.

Mrs. Scudder was questioned:

Q.—Did you intend to shoot Mr. Scudder? A.—No.

Q.—Was his action in the room such as to make you fear bodily harm? A.—Most certainly it was. I knew he intended to injure me.

Q.—Why did you reach for the revolver? A.—I wanted to frighten him.

TELLS OF INSULT.

Mrs. Scudder said that on the Friday before the shooting her brother-in-law came into her kitchen, where she was working, and insulted her.

A month before that she came in, said Mrs. Scudder, and she lectured him and ordered him to stay in his own part of the house.

PRINCESS LEDA WINS SUIT AGAINST AMERICAN ACTRESS

Princess Leda Eleanor of Thurin and Taxis, who has been awarded $500 and costs in suit against Josephine Moffitt.

Sued to Restrain Josephine Moffitt from Circulating Defamatory Statements.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—A case of unusual interest to Americans was heard in the Chancery Court today the proceedings having been instituted by Princess Leda Eleanor of Thurin and Taxis, to restrain Josephine Moffitt, an American actress, from circulating defamatory statements about her. The defendant testified that she had been married to Prince Victor of Thurin and Taxis, a Hungarian nobleman, in Newark, N. J., on October 1, 1906. This was five years before the plaintiff had married the Prince in Uniontown, Pa. Miss Moffitt was accused of making public statements to the effect that under the Austrian law, the plaintiff could not be other than a morganatic wife of the nobleman, as they are not of equal rank. The plaintiff was awarded $500 damages and the costs of the case.

Sentence Boys in Fatal Torturing

HOULTON, Me., Dec. 2.—Louis and Herbert Cote, aged thirteen and nine years respectively, who tortured Hartley Webb, fourteen, on June 11, killing him, were today sentenced by Judge Haley here to the State Reform School at Portland. It was explained this disposition was made of the case because of the tenderness youth of the boys. The judge also provided that they should serve three to four years in the State prison if this be found necessary.

MEXICAN BULLETS WOUND AMERICANS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Additional casualties from bullets from the Mexican side of the border at Naco, Ariz., were reported today to the War Department in a dispatch from Colonel Hatfield, forwarded by Major-General Bliss.

The message stated that two Mexican boys and three Mexican girls were shot, that a clergyman, the Rev. Dr. Withrow, had been struck by a bullet "but not materially injured," and that Private Allen Cain, a cavalryman, had received a serious wound.

Colonel Hatfield also reported that intermittent artillery fire from the west and sniping continues.

General Gutierrez, the Provisional President of Mexico, has reached the outskirts of Mexico City and will proceed with General Villa to the National Palace today, according to official advices received by the State Department from Juarez. Villa spent last night at Tecuba, a suburb.

State department officials declare they have no evidence in reports that there has been friction between Zapata and Villa. They do not credit the report of a clash in Mexico City between the two chiefs.

The town of Panuco, in the oil fields, is reported to be occupied by Carranzista troops following the withdrawal of Villa's forces from that neighborhood. It is said to be Villa's purpose to leave to General Caballero the task of controlling the State of Tamaulipas, while Villa and Zapata take VeVra Cruz and drive the Carranistas south to the Isthmus of Tehuantepec.

STRIKERS BATTLE AT COLLEGE

One hundred and fifty striking bricklayers today charged up the historic hill on which the ruins of College Hall stand at Wellesley College, and attacked 45 workmen with such vigor that a riot call was sent in for the Wellesley police.

The attacking force used some war strategy, too, the police claimed. A five-foot wire fence had been placed about the ruins. On the outside of this the 150 strikers assembled.

Then somebody gave a signal, the police say, and the attack started.

Over the "wire fortifications" the men climbed, gaining the inner ground of defence. According to the police story, several knives were flashed and brickbats were thrown by the invading force. The casualty list, however, carried but one man—a non-striker, who was slightly cut in the fray.

The attack took the police by surprise, as only one patrolman had been stationed on the college grounds. The moment the "hostile host" began its forward march up the hill this policeman ran to a nearby police signal box and gave the alarm.

The entire police force and reserves—ten men in all—responded on the jump. These four men were arrested and accused of creating a disturbance.

Raffaele Marmarshetto, thirty, of Wellesley; William Buckley, twenty-four, of Natick; Ginnis Gaiovelli, twenty-four, of South Framingham, and Angelo Dervio, twenty-four, of South Framingham.

Today's battle-of-College-Hall-hill was the second, the trouble having started yesterday when the 150 went on strike, alleging that their daily pay had been cut from 42 to $1.75. The forty-five stuck to their work trimming the bricks of the ruins of fire-swept College Hall.

The police said that the battle today was at such an early hour that none of the girls witnessed the charge up the historic hill.

Deny Cooper's Plea for Commutation

The Parole Board today reported by a vote of three to two against the commutation of the death sentence of Daniel J. Cooper, who was sentenced to die in the electric chair during the week of December 6 for the murder of Albert A. Bradish. All five members of the board, it is said, admit that Cooper is not in his right mind. Governor Walsh has not decided whether he will present the case to the Executive Council.

124th DAY OF THE WAR

As Told in Official Dispatches.

FRENCH OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

PARIS, Dec. 2.—In the region to the south of Ypres, at St. Eloi, an attack of the enemy against a trench captured by our troops during the day was repulsed.

Our artillery damaged three heavy batteries of the enemy's artillery at Vermelles. The chateau at this place, the park surrounding it, two houses of the village and some of the enemy's trenches were brilliantly captured by our troops.

In the environs of Fay, to the south and to the west of Peronne, there was a lively cannonade. In the region of Vendresse and Craonne the German artillery bombarded violently. Our artillery answered the enemy's gun fire successfully and succeeded in destroying a battery.

In the Argonne an attack of the Germans against Fontaine Madame has been repulsed, and we made some progress, capturing a trench in the woods of Courtes Chaussen and a small work of defence at St. Hubert.

On the heights of the Meuse, in the Woevre region and in the Vosges, nothing worth mentioning has happened.

GERMAN OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

BERLIN, Dec. 2.—General headquarters reports that in the western theatre the enemy has made insignificant advances which now have been checked. In the Argonne region a strong position, supporting the enemy's lines, has been taken by the Kaiser's Wurttemburg infantry.

As to the eastern theatre the general staff says that the battle in north Poland is taking its normal course. In southern Poland the Russian attacks are being repulsed.

In the last fortnight the German troops posted between Lowiez and Wloclawek have taken 80,000 unwounded Russian prisoners.

RUSSIAN OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

PETROGRAD, Dec. 2.—All along the front our troops are continuing their victorious advance. The excessive cold, however is detaining general operations. A portion of the Russian army is nearing Cracow, where it has halted to await the main body of troops. The capture of that town is imminent.

After desperate fighting, our troops, by outflanking the Austro-Hungarian forces, captured the villages of Bochnia and Gumannoy.

Despite the severe cold, the temperature being as low as 22 degrees at some points, the spirit and enthusiasm of troops continues very good.

AUSTRIAN OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

VIENNA, Dec. 2.—The garrison of Przemysl has made a successful sortie and delivered a counter attack which checked the advance of the Russians. Fighting continues in the Carpathians without any definite result. Observers in Zeppelins report that the Russians are retreating at some points.

BOULIER ON TRIAL AS GIRL'S SLAYER

HOULTON, Me., Dec. 2.—The trial of Alden Boulier, the New Sweden young man who is charged with murdering his fiancee, Miss Emma Jensen, at Caribou, on June 27, began today before Judge George F. Haley in the Supreme Judicial Court. Boulier and Miss Jensen attended a circus together at Caribou. After the performance Boulier, who is twenty-three, claims he saw a circus hand annoying the girl he intended to marry and that he used his revolver, intending to hit the circus man. The Jensen girl was shot twice.

Testimony showed her to have been of exemplary character. The State claims Boulier invented the story about the alleged actions of a circus employe to cover his guilt. A witness told how he heard several shots and saw Boulier a few minutes later hurrying along the road with a revolver in his hand.

REICHSTAG MEETS TO VOTE WAR FUND

BERLIN, Dec. 2.—The Reichstag met today to vote further war credits. Dr. Von Bethmann-Hollweg, the imperial chancellor, addressed the members, declaring that the situation on both the eastern and western fronts "is favorable to our arms." He urged that the Reichstag vote the credits asked on the ground that such action would be a stimulus to the troops.

At the same time War Office announced the receipt of dispatches from eastern headquarters saying that, while the Russians were putting up [illegible]burn resistance, the German [illegible]gn is being pronounced wit[illegible]ccess.

80,000 RUSSIANS CAPTURED BY THE GERMANS IN POLAND

SUMMAPY OF TODAY'S WAR NEWS.

(UNOFFICIAL)—PARIS, Dec. 2.—A Geneva telegram to the Journal states that a serious insurrection has broken out in Austria and that it is rumored that Emperor Francis Joseph will abdicate in favor of the present heir to the throne, Archduke Charles Francis Joseph. The dispatch adds:

"The revolutionary movement has grown enormously in Bohemia. It is reported that the Twenty-eighth Czech Regiment of first line troops and the Twenty-eighth Regiment of Territorials have been decimated in the rebellion."

(OFFICIAL)—PARIS, Dec. 2.—Three batteries of heavy German guns have been destroyed by French in an artillery duel at Vermelles. The allies also took some German trenches in that district. South of Ypres the Germans made a furious attack in an effort to regain ground previously lost, but were repulsed. Heavy artillery fire is reported from others sections.

(OFFICIAL)—LONDON, Dec. 2.—It was announced today that the Prince of Wales relief fund has reached the total of $20,000,000.

BERLIN, Dec. 2.—German troops between Lowiez and Wloclawek have taken 80,000 unwounded Russian prisoners in the past two weeks' fighting in Poland, according to an official statement of the War Office today.

SOFIA, via Berlin and Amsterdam, Dec. 2.—The situation in Servia is critical. It is reported that the Servian army is being withdrawn from Belgrade and that all communication between Belgrade and Nish has been cut.

TERRIFIC LOSSES IN POLAND; FRENCH ADVANCE ON METZ

War interest is still centred in the terrific conflict in Poland, where the Russians and the Teutonic allies have been fighting without cessation for nearly two weeks.

Today's dispatches from Petrograd and Berlin seem to show that the battle is rapidly developing into a deadlock.

Kaiser Wilhelm, it is reported, has joined his forces in Russia, and is leading his men in the mighty effort of the Germans to check the advance of the foe.

TERRIFIC LOSSES IN POLISH BATTLE

Petrograd, by the medium of the Army Messenger, announces today that the victorious advance of the Russians continues along the entire battle front. The severe cold is hampering operations but the Russians continue to meet with considerable success.

The Berlin War Office, in today's statement, announces the receipt of dispatches from eastern headquarters saying that, while the Russians were putting up a stubborn resistance, the German campaign is being prosecuted with success. The German offensive toward Lowicz is pushing back the Russians in that region, it is claimed.

The Russian victory at Lodz, as it is referred to by the Petrograd statement, was due, so it is said, to the Cossacks. They acquired further glory by their daring operations. Where other troops hesitated, the Cossacks hurled themselves against the enemy and swept all before them.

The official statement states that fierce fighting continues in the direction of Lowicz. All attempts by the Germans to advance in the region of Rzesnow were repulsed with heavy loss.

This statement is taken to mean that, despite their terrific losses, the Germans are holding their ground. The Germans are making a second determined attempt to advance from Wielun. Fighting is in progress on the high road from Wielun to Piotrkow. No information was given out regarding the condition of the German Twentieth Corps and the reserve guards recently reported surrounded.

FIGHT FOR SIXTEEN HOURS.

Reports from the front are that reinforcements sent for the army of General Mackenzen near Lodz are taking up positions along the Vistula River. The apparent purpose of this move is to hinder the Russian enveloping movement until the main German column is extricated from the line which runs from Strykow through Sgierz to Szadek.

"The Germans persist in the furious struggle to burst through northward from Lowicz and end their besieged position," says a correspondent at the front. "They are charging the Russian infantry night and day for control of the north road through Kutno leading to Thorn. This road, which follows the railroad, is the only passage through which a relief army can be brought from the north. Close-quarter fighting has lasted sixteen hours, with terrific slaughter."

SUPPLY BARGES TAKEN.

The Petrograd correspondent of the London Post telegraphs:

"Special significance attaches to the capture by the Russians of ammunition barges on the Vistula, near Plock, inasmuch as the Germans are replying mainly upon the Vistula for securing easy communication to their armies in Poland.

"Lavish supplies of ammunition have been kept up by barges which, starting from Danzig, Elbing, Graudenz, Thorn and other points easily reached by the German railways, have brought supplies to the heart of the German positions in Poland. The capture of the barges is thus a step in cutting communication."

A dispatch at Petrograd from Lemberg says:

The energetic Russian advance is persistently pushing back the Austrians into Cracow. Information reaching Lemberg from a trustworthy source is to the effect that the Austrians are evacuating positions after positions, with very large losses.

It is said that the Austrians' line of retreat is strewn so thickly with the dead that the Russians have not time to bury them.

German officers are in supreme command at Cracow.

The Vienna version of the situation here is given in the report of a successful sortie by the garrison at Przemysl.

DESTROY GERMAN GUNS.

Three batteries of heavy German guns have been destroyed by the French in an artillery duel at Vermelles, it was officially announced by the French War Office this afternoon. (Vermelles is about four miles southwest of La Bassee in Northern France on the railway joining the line between Bethune and Lens.)

The allies took some German trenches in that district after a brilliant bayonet charge in which the soldiers engaged in hand-to-hand fighting.

South of Ypres the Germans made a furious but ineffectual attack in an effort to regain ground they had previously lost. These attacks, which took place at St. Eloi, two and a half miles south of Ypres, were repulsed. Heavy artillery fire was reported from other sections of the front, particularly near Craonne, north of Rheims, where the Germans have increased the vigor of their cannonade.

The gains by the allies are admitted in the official Berlin statement which refers to them as "Insignificant advances."

Unofficial reports from Fuernes state that the Germans may again turn their faces toward Calais for another series of desperate assaults before settling down upon the defensive, but these have not been borne out by the developments.

A French army which has cut its way northward through the Moselle valley to Arnaville, nearly within artillery range of the outer circle of forts at Metz, is carrying on a vigorous bombardment of the fortresses there in an effort to move farther to the north. Northeast of Arnaville lies the army of Metz, commanded by General von Strantz, a German veteran of 1870. Northwest of Arnaville on the west side of the Meuse lies the German army which is commonly known as the army of the German Crown Prince.

It is the object of the commander of the French army of the Moselle to get between these two forces. Success in this endeavor would further imperil the Germans who secured a foothold at St. Mihiel, and would lessen the dangers which confront Verdun. In the event of a decisive German defeat in France, the Germans' left wing would be in a serious predicament. It would find its direct line of retreat into Metz cut off, and if the French were able to penetrate to Longuyon they would prevent the Germans from retreating eastward by way of Stenay.

The French are increasing their pressure against the Germans in this region, knowing full well that the invaders have taken all the men possible from that region to reinforce their armies in the north. The sound of cannonade continues along the Aisne, and on the Arras-Bethune-Armentiers line the German artillery is showing no signs of weakening its terrific fire. Bloody hand-to-hand fighting is reported from West Flanders, being carried on chiefly by small detachments which are detailed to seize groups of houses and patches of small woodland held by the enemy.

A Geneva dispatch to the Paris Journal states that a serious insurrection has broken out in Austria and that it is rumored that Emperor Francis Joseph will abdicate in favor of the present heir to the throne, Archduke Charles Francis Joseph. The dispatch adds:

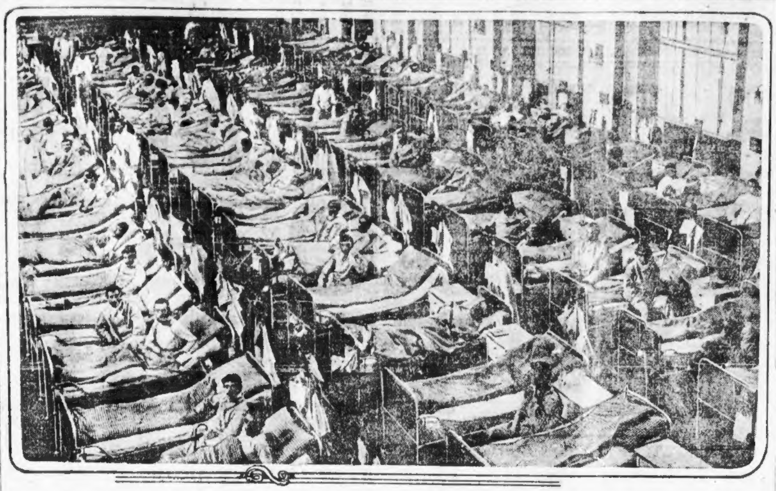

"The revolutionary movement has grown enormously in Bohemia. It is reported that the Twenty-eighth Czech Regiment of First Line troops and the Twenty-eighth Regiment of Territorials have been decimated in the rebellion."

A Copenhagen dispatch to the London Mail says that over 200,000 fugitives from East Prussia have arrived in Germany.

Turkish headquarters at Constantinople report that fighting is continuing on the Transcaucasian frontier without decisive result.

A private dispatch at Copenhagen from Berlin says that the Abyssinian Government has offered to furnish an army to Great Britain.

SCENE IN FRENCH HOSPITAL SHOWING LONG ROWS OF WOUNDED

'MEN, ENLIST!' IS PANKHURST PLEA

LONDON, Dec. 2.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, speaking at a meeting of the Woman's Social and Political Union, made a strong appeal in the name of women to young men of Britain to join the army.

"We women," she said, "are the weaker sex. We have been told our hands are full with our domestic concerns and our maternal duties. In times of peace we have a good deal to say on that, but in war we are compelled to take men at their words.

"TESTING TIME."

"Men say to us, 'Leave fighting to us. It does not become women to fight. We protect women. We fight for you. We shield you from difficulties and the ills of life.'

"Well, this is the testing time for men and women, too. We take you gentlemen at your word. We say it is the duty of men to do their best to redeem their pledges to women. We have not been allowed to prepare ourselves for self-defence because we are women."

Referring to criticisms of the government which recently have appeared, Mrs. Pankhurst said:

"During the last few days I have been thanking God I was not a superior person.

CENSURES SHAW.

"I will tell you who is to blame if things are not as they ought to be. It is you enfranchised men. It is the Bernard Shaws and all the rest of them. (Cheers and laughter). It is time for people either to criticize helpfully or to hold their tongues. If we women with our grievances against men can hold our tongues, I think other people might do so.

"The views I have always held I still hold. Nothing is more horrible than wars of aggression, but I believe that whatever faults we had in the past, now we are engaged in a righteous war. Much as I love peace I believe there are times when it is right to fight, and I say to the young men that there are women who never thought to envy men their manhood, but who for this purpose at least would be glad to be men."

Germany Has 58 1-2 Army Corps Fighting

PARIS, Dec. 2.—"Germany at present has at her disposal twenty-five and one-half active army corps of which twenty-one and one-half are operating against France and four against Russia. Of the thirty-three German reserve army corps, twenty-two and one-half are now employed against France and ten and one-half against Russia," says semi-official statement.

"These figures show there is a total of fifty-eight and one-half army corps active or reserve fighting for Germany on the two fronts.

$26,135,389 FOR NEW U. S. SHIPS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—The United States spent during the fiscal year 1913-14 for the construction of new ships for the navy $26,135,389.42, according to the annual report of Paymaster General Samuel McGowan today. Beside this expense for new construction, which included labor and materials, there was devoted to the maintenance of ships in commission other than receiving ships, including pay of officers and men, subsistence and incidental expenses, a total of $39,435,733.13.

The cost of repairs to ships and equipment of the navy at home and abroad was $7,902,229.58. For maintaining, receiving, prison and station ships the cost was $6,178,747.43. A total of $13,559,825.53 was expended for maintaining navy yards and stations.

Total cost of maintenance of battleships of the first line ranged from $187,992.67 in the case of the New York, to $985,838.45 for the Wyoming. The budget for the Wyoming showed $603,176.50 for accrued pay, $1,255.87 for incidental public bills, $124,979.00 for subsistence, $196,241.58 for stores issued $51,004.94 for hull and machinery and $9,180.26 for repairs and equipage.

New York had the highest expenditure for navy yard maintenance and improvements, its fund being $2,129,119.35. Other yards spending more than $1,000,000 during the year for this purpose were Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, Norfolk, Mare Island, Puget Sound and Pearl Harbor.

OCEAN LINERS TO BOSTON INCREASE

Boston's commerce is increasing in spite of the war. For November the port showed a boom in both the number of steamers arriving from foreign ports and the number of saloon passengers.

Last month sixty-two steamers entered the port against fifty-nine in November, 1913. The number of Swedish vessels arriving last month was the largest for a single month on record.

Two hundred and seventy-five saloon passengers came to Boston last month against 255 in November of last year. There were fewer steerage passengers, however, than in November, 1913.

There was a falling off in the number of schooners and barkentines. Last month there were twenty schooners and one barkentine against forty-two schooners and two barkentines a year ago.

Yield to Ames Heiress Will Now Marry at Home

Lillian Chatman, granddaughter of Governor Ames, whose wedding tomorrow to rich auto eloper, now divorced, was reported opposed by her relatives.

Miss Chatman Had Left Home to Become Bride of Ted Robbins.

The actual announcement of the coming marriage of Lillian Ames Chatman, the nineteen-year-old Brookline heiress to millions, to Clarence Aaron Robbins, the New York athlete, author and clubman, known to his intimates as "Ted" Robbins, has effected a reconciliation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Chatman of Beacon street, Brookline.

Her parents had so vigorously opposed the wedding that Miss Chatman had left home to live with friends in Brookline. Rather than have their daughter married away from home, her parents have relented, and today announced the wedding as to take place at their home, tomorrow noon.

Robbins was divorced a few weeks ago in Brooklyn. According to his friends in New York Miss Chatman jilted a young Boston millionaire, whose name they refuse to reveal in favor of Mr. Robbins. Robbins, himself the heir to millions, achieved temporary fame with his novel "Wicked Woman," which is declared to have been based on his first romance.

Mr. Robbins is understood to be registered at a Boston hotel today. A dinner will be tendered to Mr. Robbins and his ushers by Miss Chatman in Brookline tonight.

WAS AT BOARDING SCHOOL.

Miss Chatman met Mr. Robbins several months ago while she was attending a fashionable finishing school in New York and when the divorce suit of the first Mrs. Robbins was pending in the courts.

Miss Chatman is connected with some of the most distinguished families in Massachusetts. As the favorite granddaughter of former Governor Ames, she inherited a large share of his estate of $10,000,000. Some of her ancestors came over in the Mayflower. One of her direct ancestors was John Alden.

Her grandfather helped to finance the building of the Union Pacific Railroad. Oakes Ames, professor of botany at Harvard, is her uncle. Henry Lorenzo Chatman and Lillian Ames Chatman, her parents, are prominent in Boston society.

Mr. Robbins has chosen for his ushers Lothar Newberry, Cedric Gibbons, Fennels Beckwith and Frank D. Mulvihill. Mr. Robbins declined to give further details of the wedding plans.

IN AUTO ELOPEMENT.

Robbins in 1909 took the beautiful Miss Edith Norman Hyde from her home at Douglaston, L. I., for a motor ride which wound up in Jersey City, where they were married. It was almost a month before the wedding was made public by the young couple.

They were apparently happy for several years, when a separation was agreed upon, which culminated eventually in the divorce court. Two sons were born, the custody of whom is shared by the parents in half yearly periods.

DICTAGRAPH PUTS OFF DUDLEY TRIAL

HOULTON, Me., Dec. 2.—The trial of Dr. Lionel E. Dudley, accused of the murder of seventeen-year-old Mildred Leah Sullivan, known as "the prettiest girl in Aroostook County," was today postponed until Saturday morning.

The trial was scheduled to begin tomorrow, but as a result of the finding of a second dictagraph in the county jail Judge Haley granted the two days' delay.

The first contingent of the venire of 100 special talesmen for the trial reached here today. The trial is to last from seven to ten days in the belief of the county authorities. Some difficulty is expected in the picking of the jury.

Attorney Ransford W. Shaw, senior counsel for the alleged slayer, said today:

"Judge Haley told us that we were entitled to some delay to overcome the effects and inconvenience caused by our finding that dictagraph yesterday.

WANT SPY-PROOF ROOM.

"I told the Court we would like to put the case off until Saturday. We did not feel that there was any place where we could consult our client after yesterday's discovery. We consider the placing of these dictagraphs scandalous. However, under arrangements we have made, we shall have a consultation room which shall be spy-proof and satisfactory. There will be no more dictagraphs, I

The trial will be Maine's most notable criminal case in years, and is expected to develop numerous sensations on both sides. Thousands will come to Houlton from all over the county. Interest in the case is still at fever heat.

The latest dictagraph was discovered in the casing of the window in a cell room which had been used for days by the attorneys for Dudley and the Pellitier girl for consultation. Attorneys Ransford Shaw, Parker P. Burleigh, Nathaniel Tompkins and Hershal Shaw had been in conference with Dr. Dudley two hours when the younger Mr. Shaw sighted a mysterious wire running along the window frame.

"That's a queer place for a wire," said Hershal Shaw. "Perhaps its another dictagraph."

The attorneys investigated. The wire was ripped away, revealing a dictagraph under the window sill.

The defence lawyers hastened into the courthouse and Ransford Shaw had a conference with Judge Haley at the bench. A murder trial was suspended while Judge Haley joined counsel for both sides in his lobby. Attorney General Wilson and County Attorney Archibald were confronted by a furious band of opponents, who displayed the dictagraph.

Attorney Burleigh said afterward:

DEFENCE PROTESTS.

"We wouldn't have minded it so much if it hadn't occurred within a few hours of the time that the Court had assured us that our client's rights and counsel's privileges would be protected, and that we be provided with quarters where we could be free from interruption and spying. As it is now we don't feel that we are free any place to talk as we desire.

"You can imagine our astonishment on finding a dictagraph in the room we have been using daily to confer with our clients, and where we had been in conference two hours or more before the discovery."

County Attorney Archibald was not disturbed by the protests and anger of his opponents. He said.

"That distagraph was not in use. It had been installed but had not been used since Dr. Dudley found a dictagraph in his cell two weeks ago, nor have any dictagraphs been used in the jail since that time.

"The wires were not connected. It was a dead instrument. Even if it were in commission we would not think of using conversations between defendants and their counsel.

FOG AGAIN HOLDS UP BOSTON BOATS

While the fog which has enveloped shipping in the harbor is not quite so thick as in previous days, there is enough of it today to upset schedules and put an embargo on all coastwise sailings.

Telegraphic dispatches from other ports indicate that the entire Atlantic seaboard, from Baltimore to Nova Scotia, is blanketed by a thick fog.

A wireless dispatch from the Merchant and Miners' liner Kershaw, from Baltimore to Boston, due at daylight today, states that she is at anchor off Highland Light in a dense fog.

The Henry F. Dimock of the Merchants and Miners' line due from New York yesterday, has not docked yet. It is believed she makes up one of the fleet at Vineyard Sound.

The British steamship Tunesrana, chartered by the Cunard line to load at Boston for Liverpool, and which left New York Monday night, is also fog-bound at Vineyard Sound.

The coastwise steamer Gloucester of the Merchants and Miners line, due from Baltimore, is still held at that port owing to the thick fog in Chesapeake Bay.

The few vessels that came through the fog were from Maine coastwise ports. They reported that the fog is very dense and that they made port only by dead reckoning and soundings.

Three Transports Held Up in Fog

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 2.—The transports Denver, Santa Marcus and Memphis, carrying more than 1,000 marines on their way to the navy yard here from Vera Cruz, are fog-bound today just outside of the Delaware breakwater. The boats are at anchor and are waiting for the fog to clear. There are about 400 marines on board each boat. Colonel Waller is in command. The Denver is expected to dock some time tonight and the other two transports tomorrow.

RAILROADS WILL COLLECT WAR TAX

Hundreds of business men and their clerks stormed the offices of Internal Revenue Collector Malley at No. 45 Milk street again today, seeking stamps for the new war tax. They were told no stamps had arrived, but that the consignment was expected at any time.

Meanwhile, they were told, the railroads would collect one cent on shipments requiring a one cent stamp, the shippers could keep a record of their shipments and they can come into the office and pay in a week or ten days.

There were about 150 waiting when the offices opened today. A temporary office was opened on the second floor as well as on the fourth floor. Most of those who came, however, sought one and two cent stamps, and there were none such to be had. Three cent stamps, five-centers, quarter stamps and forty cent stamps were the only ones in stock.

Slogans for Boston flooded into the AMERICAN office today, scores on scores of them. Boston seeks a slogan to be placed on a big illuminatel sign at the South Station. The slogan in this contest should express a similar idea.

All suggestions must be in at the AMERICAN office not later than 5 p. m. Saturday, December 5.

How to Neutralize Dangerous Stomach Acids

Few people besides physicians realize the importance of keeping the food contents of the stomach free from acid fermentation. Healthy, normal digestion cannot take place while the delicate lining of the stomach is being inflamed and distended by acid and wind—the result of fermenting food in the stomach. To secure perfect digestion, fermentation must be stopped or prevented and the acid neutralized. For this purpose, physicians recommend getting a little bisurated magnesia from the druggist and taking a teaspoonful in a little hot or cold water immediately after eating. They recommend bisurated magnesia because it is pleasant to take, has no disagreeable after-effects and instantly stops fermentation, neutralizes the acid and makes the sour acid bland, sweet and easily digested.

The regular use of bisurated magnesia—be sure you get the bisurated, as other kinds of magnesia are of little value—is an absolute guarantee of healthy, normal digestion, for it overcomes and prevents that acid condition which alone is the cause of trouble.—Advertisement.

OFFERS SELF FOR CANCER GERM TEST

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—To make amends to society for a serious crime he committed a few years ago, a life prisoner in Auburn has written Thomas Mott Osborne, the newly appointed warden of Sing Sing, offering himself to be inoculated with cancer germs to prove whether or not this terrible disease is contagious.

The man has asked Mr. Osborne not to divulge his name. He is young, highly educated and realizes that in case the disease is contagious he will die.

He became interested when he read an article a year ago by Dr. Roswell Park of Buffalo, who operated on President McKinley, and is considered one of the greatest experts in America.

"This man is sincere in his request to make this sacrifice for society," said Warden Osborne. "He is willing to take his chance in hope that if cancer proves to be contagious that he will be able to save thousands upon thousands of lives.

"I shall take up the case with the Attorney-General-elect Woodberry. This man offered himself a few years ago, but Attorney-General Carmody ruled the State could not allow it. Mr. Woodberry may rule otherwise.

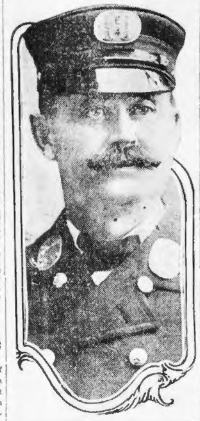

Vigilance Board for Saylesville

PAWTUCKET, Dec. 2.—Citizens of the town of Saylesville appointed a vigilance committee today as a result of three daring holdups in the town within the past two weeks. The latest robbery was that of Edward Munyon, a driver, who was robbed of $30 last night. The police say the robberies were committed by the same masked highwayman, who works alone. Hereafter the town will be patrolled nightly by citizens.

Ownership Bill Is Filed by Sterling

Henry Sterling, representing the Massachusetts branch of the American Federation of Labor, has filed with the clerk of the House eleven petitions, the most important of which conained provisions for public ownership of street railways, the initiative and referendum, woman suffrage and additional "home rule" for cities and towns.

Rockefeller Fights Tax on $311,000,000

CLEVELAND, Dec. 2.—John D. Rockefeller will take to the Federal courts his fight against paying taxes on a valuation of $311,000,000 in Cuyahoga County. Within ten days Virgil P. Kline, his personal attorney, will begin suit to prevent the county tax commission from attempting to collect the tax.

"We will test the constitutionality of the law which, it is asserted, makes Mr. Rockefeller a legal resident of Cuyahoga County," said Mr. Kline. "Mr. Rockefeller regards the valuation as unjust."

SEVEN BOSTON FIREMEN HURT

The list of injured firemen:

Acting District Chief Michael Walsh of Roxbury, cut about the head.

District Chief John E. Madison, injuries to right side and leg.

Captain William E. Riley, back strained.

Chief's Aid Edward McDonough, slightly hurt.

Hoseman John McNamara, slightly injured.

Ladderman Daniel Crowley, slightly hurt.

Seven firemen were injured in two fires in Boston. While responding to a still alarm Acting District Chief Michael Walsh of Roxbury was thrown from his automobile when it collided with an inward-bound North Station car at the corner of Hampden and Eustis streets, Roxbury.

Walsh suffered cuts about the head and was treated at the City Hospital. His chauffeur, Hoseman Nolan of Engine 12, was also thrown out and slightly hurt.

The fire was in the home of Gottlieb Keiser, No. 225 Eustis street. The loss was $200.

Five other firemen were hurt when a floor collapsed during a fire at No. 7 State street. Among the injured was District Chief John E. Madison, who suffered injuries to his right side and leg. Last week Madison was injured in fighting the four-alarm $70,000 Cambridge street fire.

The others injured at the State street fire were: Captain William E. Riley, whose back was strained; Chief's Aid Edward McDonough, Hoseman John McNamara and Ladderman Daniel Crowley, who were slightly hurt.

Captain Riley's injuries will confine him to his bed at his home, No. 57 Monument avenue, Charlestown, for several days.

The State street blaze was in the photographing studio of Luther H. Wormwood. The flames were discovered by Sergeant William Horton of the Court square station. He sounded the alarm, while Patrolman Marks entered the building to arouse a man who was asleep on the fourth floor. This man refused to give his name.

The fire was fought from the fifth floor. The stairs gave way and then the floor collapsed. The firemen were landed in a heap and comrades went to their assistance.

The police today searched Brighton for incendiaries who set fires to two barns in that district early today. Two men were seen running from each of the fires. The first barn burned was at the corner of Market and Waverly streets. Soon afterwards a barn at No. 30 Lincoln street was set afire. The police said that a score of other recent fires in the district were the work of incendiaries.

Curley Back from Appeal for Riley

Mayor Curley, Attorney-General Boynton and Judge Riley are expected back in Boston today following their call at the Department of Justice in Washington, where, it is understood, Judge Riley's appointment as United States marshal at Boston was urged upon Attorney-General Gregory.

PROHIBITIONISTS WILL FIGHT HERE

The Prohibitionists of the nation are preparing to concentrate on Massachusetts to elect a Prohibition Governor in 1915. Two hundred college men are being enlisted and trained for campaign work.

HATHAWAY WILL 'CLEAN UP' CITY

Mayor-Elect Edward R. Hathaway of New Bedford told the AMERICAN today how he is going to clean out City Hall, discharge the municipal chauffeurs, stop "junketing" and other extravagance and bring down the tax rate.

The election of Mr. Hathaway by the close majority of 130 votes over Mayor Ashley came as a stunning surprise, for Charles S. Ashley has been elected Mayor of New Bedford seventeen times in the past 23 years. Barring two defeats when he was first a candidate, he has been invincible up to yesterday. More than that, his majorities kept increasing. The betting was 10 to 1 on Ashley.

The Ashley camp was like a man paralyzed today. John N. O'Brien, the Ashley leader, has been joyously hailed from year to year as "The Maker of Mayors," from the repeated successes of the Ashley ticket. Nobody was saying "Maker of Mayors" in O'Brien's hearing today.

CRUMB OF COMFORT.

There was a crumb of consolation in today's developments for the Ashleyites, for latest figures showing that Mortimer McCarthy, an Ashley man, won for alderman by 98 votes. This will give the Ashley or Citizens' party two aldermen, to four for Hathaway. In the council the new Mayor will have only seven members, to sixteen Ashley men and one independent.

The opposition to Hathaway depends upon this majority in the council to make trouble for the Hathaway program.

While the Ashley folk were asking today: "How did it happen," the Mayor-elect was saying:

"Yesterday's results show that the people of New Bedford are tired of the extravagance of the Ashley administration. They desire a cleaning out of City Hall.

"The tax rate of $23.20 is altogether too high. It is time the citizens had a square deal.

"It costs $18,700 a year to run the municipal building. There is a good deal of extravagance there. I am going to cut out the excessive help.

TO CURTAIL HIGH PRICES.

"I shall curtail in all departments. I shall reorganize the street department by elimination of outside contractors and by building up a permanent staff of men who will work fifty-two weeks in a year and give a full day's labor to the city.

"I shall save $75,000 a year in the street department alone by systemization of the work. I shall save $12,000 a year on street oil that New Bedford pays 8½ cents a gallon for, while other cities pay about 4½ cents.

"I shall do away with the expensive automobiles used by heads of city departments now and shall expect the department heads to drive their cars themselves."

Mr. Hathaway meant he would require less expensive models of cars and the dismissal of the five or six chauffeurs now hired by the city.

"I shall reorganize the police department. I shall stop the extravagance of the Board of Health.

"I shall do away with junketing of all kinds.

"It will be my aim to give the city of New Bedford a clean, efficient administration, giving everyone a square deal. I am confident that, with the changes I have outlined, much of the needless expense will be eliminated and the tax rate materially reduced."

OFFICER BATTLES THIEF ON COMMON

In an attempt to escape from Patrolman "Billy" Hill of the Court square station, who was pursuing him across the Common for stealing an automobile robe, Timothy Sheehan, thirty-five, of No. 36 Beach street, Revere, threw the robe over the officer's head. A fist fight followed between the officer and his prisoner, during which both were entangled in the blanket. Sheehan was finally subdued.

Hill, who is a medal of honor man, was standing on the crossing at the corner of Tremont and Winter streets. He saw Sheehan take the robe from the machine owned by Thomas McGrath of No. 9 Federal street, Providence, which was standing on Park street.

With the robe on his arm he crossed to the Common. On looking behind he saw that the officer was following. He ran, only to be more closely pursued by Hill, who caught him at the Frog Pond. Here Sheehan attempted to make his unique escape.

Heat Record Broken in Dry November

There was but a trace of snow last month. November, 1898, the month in which the steamer Portland was lost, marked the record snowfall for the month, 17.8 inches. The excess for the past eleven months is 180 degrees over normal.

Combing Won't Rid Hair Of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.—Advertisement.

JAPANESE FIRE AT U. S. STEAMER

NORFOLK, Dec. 2—How an American steamer was fired on by a Japanese warship is told by Captain Wright and the crew of the Montanan, just in from the Pacific coast with a cargo of dried fruit and canned goods.

The wireless operator on the Montanan says a wireless call was heard off the coast of Mexico, apparently from a German warship, which gave the call letters "A. S. N." The warship claims to be German, but the wireless operator, familiar with the Kaiser's navy, reported to Captain Wright that was no such vessel in the German fleet.

Captain Wright ordered his operator to pay no attention to the call, but he was forced to change his mind some time later when a Japanese warship approached on the horizon and signalled the American ship to stop.

Then the Japanese ship fired at the Montanan and the latter stopped. Japanese officers and an armed boat from the warship in a small boat, but when they reached the Montanan and were told she was an American vessel bound for an American port, they declined not to board her.

Tammany Club Sends $500; Fills 250 Xmas Baskets

Contributions, Big and Little, Continue to Pour in for the Needy.

Five hundred dollars more in a single contribution to the AMERICAN'S "Give a Basket" fund.

This means that the number of the estimated rate of $2 to fill a Christmas basket for a family dinner.

The $500 comes from the Tammany Club of Ward 4, Charlestown, Curley's battling organization. It is advance money, taken from the early sale of tickets for the classic shortly ball in Symphony Hall on Wednesday night, December 23.

The club has arranged the net proceeds of the ball to pay "Give a Basket" fund, and the AMERICAN put of the advance sale money.

Mayor Curley gives assurance that another check of the same size will be forthcoming after the ball a few days. The Mayor estimates that the charity ball will net the fund from $3,000 to $5,000 in the end, so great is the demand for tickets.

The "Give a Basket" fund is merely one feature of the united Christmas celebration which the AMERICAN is planning. Another splendid feature will be a monster evening Christmas Eve celebration on Boston Common, leading up to Christmas night.

The evening celebrations will begin on Saturday evening, December 19, with a big evening, beginning Monday evening, December 21, and continue up to and including Christmas night, Friday, December 25.

There will be special features for children, the date to be announced in the time.

XMAS SPIRIT TO HULL.

The tree will be "spendiferous," as children say, with brilliant illumination. There will be singing of Christmas carols by children. There will be general singing for old and young. Military bands will pour forth music from the Parkman memorial bandstand. Soloists will sing and the Christmas spirit will rule.

The AMERICAN will defray all the expenses of the big celebration on the Common. None of the money contributed to the "Give a Basket" Fund will be used for the free entertainment. Every cent for the "Give a Basket" Fund will be spent on the dinners for poor families.

The AMERICAN'S truck and team drivers have volunteered their services free for the work of delivering the dinner baskets to the homes of the poor.

The AMERICAN continues to receive letters, containing postal and checks for the "Give a Basket" Fund. Special Justice John C. Brackett of Dorchester Municipal Court, in encouraging letter, Judge Brackett, one of the youngest of the Police Court Justices, is noted for his reluctance to impose jail terms on offenders, if he can honestly file a case, or put the defendant on probation. He is familiar, through his bench sittings, with the problem of poverty in a large city. He writes to the Christmas Editor as follows:

MODEST CONTRIBUTION.

Nov. 30, 1914.

Christmas Editor, AMERICAN:

Dear Sir: I enclose herewith my modest contribution to buy a Christmas basket, and only wish I could see my way clear to sending you ten times the amount, as I conceive of no more splendid charity than the work which is being done by your popular and public-spirited paper in bringing a little Christmas sunshine into the hearts and homes of the worthy poor.

Wishing you every success in your praiseworthy undertaking, I am,

Sincerely yours,
JOHN G. BRACKETT.

Penn, the Florist, on Brookfield street sends a check for $10, with a cheering message of "Good thing, this fund. Let everybody give something. Good for the poor to be remembered. Good for those who have something, to give to the poor."

"SMILING JIM" SENDS $10.

"Smiling Jim" sends 'em. You know him. He is City Clerk James Donovan, known in politics and up and down and across the city as "Smiling Jim," for his perpetual good humor. He writes a smiling letter, thus:

Christmas Editor, AMERICAN:

Kindly apply the enclosed $10 to your "Give a Basket" fund. The poor of Boston surely will rise up and bless the AMERICAN for carrying on this noble work. Where in many other so-called charitable enterprises the needy are subjected to humiliating questions, the "Ask and Thou Shalt Receive" motto of the AMERICANS campaign, to me, is a liberal carrying out of the divine command. Here is a work in which every worth-while citizen of Boston, possessing the means to do so, should co-operate to the fullest extent possible, for its city-wide success.

JAMES DONOVAN.

ATTORNEY WRITES.

William Shaw McCallum, the State street attorney, writes:

Christmas Editor, AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—I am pleased to enclose you herewith by cheque for $4 to help along such a good work in supplying Xmas dinners for the poor. It is certainly a noble work your great paper is undertaking, and, it is needless to say, you have my best wishes and encouragement for its success.

Very respectfully,
WILLIAM SHAW McCALLUM.

The fame of the Christmas Fund is New England-wide. From Mountainview, N. H., comes a letter from J. W. Chamberlin, with some basket money. He writes:

MOUNTAINVIEW, N. H.,
Nov. 24, 1914.

Christmas Editor, AMERICAN:

Gentlemen—The sweetest thing in life is the happiness that comes from doing good to others. Your plan of supplying Christmas dinners to the worthy people. It gives joy and comfort to mankind. I take pleasure in enclosing herewith my check for two dollars to aid the good cause.

Very truly yours,
J. W. CHAMBERLIN.

FROM GOFF'S FALLS.

But Mountainview is not the only New Hampshire place to be heard from. Witness this from Goffe Falls:

GOFF'S FALLS, N. H.,
Nov. 28, 1914.

Boston AMERICAN: Enclosed find $2 for a basket for the woman that walked to and from your office. Yours truly,

W. H. PERKINS.

These sincere letters warm the Christmas Editor's heart. His heart gets heavy, however, when he reads some of the appeals sent in to the AMERICAN for Christmas dinner baskets. Those from children are particularly pitiable.

Some of the appeals read as follows:

Christmas Editor: I am writing this letter to let you know that I am a very poor girl. I wish you would send me a basket because we haven't anything for Xmas. If you do send me the basket I will be very glad and I will also pray for you and I will never forget your kindness till my dying day. May God bless you and also your family. Merry Xmas and a Happy New Year.

Christmas Editor: Please, Sir, will you send us a Christmas dinner basket. I am a poor woman with four children, none able to work and my little girl is an invalid for four years. My husband has no work since the war started and I have none and, if I had it, I would not be able to go, as my little girl, which is sick, is like a little babe. Please, sir, please don't refuse me, as I told the children you would send them their dinner. They won't have one if you don't send it. We trust in the Lord you won't refuse us.

Glad News for All the Good Little Boys and ALL the Little Girls of New England

But Not for ANY Little Boy or ANY Little Girl Who Says: "I Don't BELIEVE in Such-and-Such a Party."

Five minutes after midnight this morning the Editor of the AMERICAN received the following official communication, which is properly deemed of such tremendous importance that it is placed right here in fac-simile:

GEORGE EXPLAINS '5-BILLION DEBT'

LONDON, Dec. 2. — Following reports of American correspondents of London newspapers that the statement of David Lloyd George, that the United States owed Great Britain about $5,000,000,000 had caused surprise in the United States, Mr. Lloyd George has given the following statement:

"Mr. Lloyd George's actual words as reported in the official report were, 'America, I suppose, owes us nearly a thousand million pounds in fixed and floating capital, but we could not buy. It was impossible to do any business. Why? The exchanges had broken down. This paper machine had smoothed and somehow got out of order, and the result was that no business was possible.'

"This statement seems to have reached the United States in the form that America owed the United Kingdom a thousand million pounds without any explanatory words that this debt was owed in fixed and floating capital. These words, of course, make it quite clear that Mr. Lloyd George's statement referred to the total of British invested capital in America, and in no way to America's indebtedness in respect of the current balances of trade between the two countries."

MEDICAL NEWS IS URGED BY CABOT

Dr. Hugh Cabot calls on the doctors to be more friendly with the newspapers, so that the public may be kept posted on the latest news in medicine. In speaking at Evans Memorial on "The Public Press and Prevention of Disease," Dr. Cabot said in part:

If once we admit that a widespread knowledge of the facts is the most important item in the control of the public health, then it follows that the newspapers of this country might be the most important agent in the prevention of disease.

It has come to be widely recognized in the Public Health Service that the first qualification of a health officer is that he should be a diplomat, able to persuade municipal authorities and their friends that it is really wise to prevent disease. Medical knowledge has always been years in advance of public opinion and changes have come usually as the result of dreadful and unnecessary mortality which the average man could see was costing him money.

PROFESSION ABUSED.

The medical profession has been considerably abused because of its unwillingness to court publicity, and it has long been the mark of an honest doctor that he desired to keep his name out of the papers, and equally the mark of a dishonest one that he desired frequent mention of his achievements.

The medical profession must recognize more than it has the value of publicity and must learn to understand the distinction between publicity and advertising. Too much publicity cannot be given to important medical discoveries or modifications of previous knowledge or to their application to the public health.

Medical men or scientists, who must regard themselves and be regarded as unemployees rather than as individuals, must show greater willingness to come down to the level of the average man and to supply him in comprehensible form with the information necessary to the making of an opinion.

GLAD TO PRINT NEWS.

If the average man is really interested in the success of this experiment in government he must show more appreciation of the fact that the results depend upon him. If he is interested, the press will promptly supply him with all the information he may desire. Newspapers would only too gladly print more news of this character if it really were news.

When the average man awakes to his responsibility it will be news, and at that millennium the enormous mortality from preventable disease will cease.

A Fascinating Romance By Robert W. Chambers

"Hell's Ashes" is the striking title of a remarkable new story by Mr. Chambers. It is the first of a series, and we think that our readers will agree with us that it is by far the best that even Mr. Chambers has done so far. It shows him at the height of his wonderful story-telling art.

Another Story of the Ghetto by Bruno Lessing

There is no other humorous writer in America today who has a more sympathetic and truer understanding of the people about whom he writes than Bruno Lessing. "The Adventures of Sherlock Cohen" is the most amusing story that he has so far written, and we feel sure that our readers will rejoice in the misadventures of Mitzik's broaded waistcoat.

MISS RICH JILTS PATTERSON HEIR

NEW YORK, Dec. 2. — Announcement has been made that the wedding of Miss Helen Blagden Rich, daughter of Mrs. Frank L. Stratton, of this city, and Frederick Beck Patterson, only son of John H. Patterson, of the National Cash Register Company of Dayton, Ohio, has been indefinitely postponed.

Mystery surrounds the postponement, neither Mrs. Stratton nor Miss Rich being willing to discuss the case.

At Mrs. Stratton's residence it was stated that Mr. and Mrs. Stratton and Miss Rich were out of the city and would not return for some time.

All plans for the wedding, which was scheduled for New Year's Day, had been arranged. Even the wedding trip had been definitely settled upon and an announcement that Mr. Patterson and his bride would live in Dayton had been issued.

The wedding was to have taken place at 4 o'clock on the afternoon of the first day of 1915 in the chapel of St. George's Church, Stuyvesant square, and a reception was to have been held at the Ritz-Carlton.

Mme. Vandervelde Appeals to U. S. as 'Home of Reason'

"America is the only country where reason and human kindness still exist today. In Europe there is a hell of passion. The primitive instincts of our common forefathers have replaced our virtues," declared Mme. Emil Vandervelde, wife of the Belgian Minister of State, appealing in Tremont Temple for the relief of Belgian women and children who are starving and without shelter.

"My poor country, ravaged by war, shows sacked villages, burned farmhouses and ruin everywhere," she said. "Your children are safe in their beds, but thousands of Belgian children have been torn from their homes, their fathers fighting at the front and their mothers searching hopelessly for them."

USERS OF PHONE MUST PAY TAX

Commencing today every person who uses the telphone to make calls costing fifteen cents or more will have to pay one cent Federal revenue tax in addition to the regular charge. This is in accordance with the emergency revenue law recently passed by Congress, which requires the telephone companies of the United States to make the collection. An official of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company said today:

"When a person makes a call costing fifteen cents or more from a subscriber's station, either business or residence, the additional charge will appear on the subscriber's bill. This applies to any class of service, unlimited, measured, coin box or private branch exchange. If the call is made from an attended pay station the one cent tax will be collected by the operator.

"A person making a call costing fifteen cents or more from any of the thousands of automatic pay stations will be asked by the operator to drop one cent Federal tax in the quarter slot.

"When the penny drops it will be heard by the operator."

Mrs. Baff Vows Vengeance Calls Husband a "Martyr"

Mrs. Barnet Baff, widow of New York poultry dealer slain by gunmen.

POULTRY DEALER'S WIDOW WON'T BE CONTENT TILL SLAYERS DIE IN ELECTRIC CHAIR.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—"My husband gave up his life for a principle, and as long as there is a Baff, man or woman, left alive, that fight will go right on. We can never bring him back again, but we can and will avenge his death."

Mrs. Fanny Baff, widow of Barnet Baff, the wealthy poultry dealer, who was shot to death last week by gunmen, sat in the parlor of her handsome home at No. 76 West One Hundred and Twentieth street and with grim calmness made the above pledge.

"My heart is broken, my life wrecked," sobbed the grief-stricken widow. "Why did they have to kill him? Surely they could have got revenge some other way. Even if they had crippled him I would have been happy to push him around in a wheel chair for the rest of our lives. But to take him from me after all these years of work and happiness! I cannot bear it! My husband was a martyr and his death shall not have been in vain.

LIVED IN DANGER SIX YEARS.

"For over five years my husband and I have lived under a shadow. Black Hand letters began to come about six years ago. All kinds of threats were made if my husband would not combine with the Poultry Trust. He refused, because he said they were not fair to the people. The trouble came because my husband was content to sell poultry for a small profit, whereas these other dealers in the combine wanted to make millions.

"Harry, my eldest son, will take up the fight just where his father left off. If he is killed there are two more sons, and if they too are killed there are my daughter Edna and myself. These people will have to murder the entire Baff family and all of their relatives if they want to put an end to this flight.

"I asked my husband many times if he thought he was in danger. He always laughed and said that persons who wrote letters of that kind were too cowardly to kill. So many letters came that after a while I really thought they were sent only to frighten him. He would tell me they were trying to force him to agree to their standards of business. When he saw how worried I was, he stopped showing me his mail, and for the past six months I had believed that the threatening letters had ceased.

"A week ago Sunday I awoke, feeling very ill. I had been unable to sleep and had a premonition of danger. My daughter came into my room and said she had dreamed that her father had been killed. I collapsed, for that was the same feeling I had. We told my husband, but he only laughed at our fears and declared he was in no real danger.

"'They will often take a chance beating a man up,' he said, 'but when it comes to killing him, that's another story.' In spite of his assurance, I could not shake off the awful feeling I had of impending danger, and I wept all day.

"I had asked my husband to give up the business, telling him we had enough to live on, but he replied that if he were to stop fighting, the public would have to pay 5 or 6 cents a pound more for chickens. He told me that others were not willing to take only a half a cent a pound profit as he did, but wanted to make fortunes. My husband saved his small profits, but the others who charged more, speculated and lost theirs. Then they wanted my husband to help them get more to gamble with.

"I know, because it was I and not my husband who started this business. All of my life I have worked. I started thirty-two years ago and until six months ago I was at my husband's side all day. He insisted that as we were rich I must stay at home, but I was happiest with him.

"When we came here from Germany we did not have a cent. We started a small grocery store on the east side and lived in two tenement rooms. Soon we saved enough to buy another store; my husband took care of one and I took the other. Meanwhile the babies came. When my last baby was born I was quite sick and could not attend to business. My husband could not manage two stores, so we lost all of our little savings.

STARTED SMALL SHOP.

"When I recovered I started a small butcher shop with my son Harry, who was then fifteen. We thrived and I began buying chickens. That was the beginning of Baff & Son. We are now the largest poultry commission house in this country. When the business grew I took my husband in and, working together, we made it what it now is.

"When we got a little money we bought a house at Arverne. I used to go to the market with my husband at 1 o'clock in the morning. As we grew rich my husband said: 'I am making a comfortable living, why should I rob the public with big prices? I will pay my men good wages so they will not steal. I will be fair with the public.' So, as we made money, we sold meat cheaper and cheaper.

"Then threats began to come. If they had only written to me! To save my husband's life I would have given them every cent I had; I would have made my husband give up his business. A woman who starts at the very bottom with the man she loves and after facing poverty and trouble with him works to the top, does not value money or principles above his life. Money losses, trouble, meant nothing to us while we had each other.

"God may forgive them, I cannot.

R. R. RATE CASE A MARKET FACTOR

Talk is now to the effect that the New York Stock Exchange will resume business in stocks by the first of the year, if not by the middle of this month. Bankers are said to have withdrawn opposition.

Then Boston exchange would then reopen. Those in Pittsburgh and St. Louis did today. No change in the situation is reported at London. There is no foreign selling pressure observed in the bond market. The latter is quiet.

CONSIDERING A PLAN.

It is known that the Committee of Five are considering a plan for resuming business in stocks and an important announcement is expected within a few days.

It is said that a reason for delay is fear that the Interstate Commerce Commission will not decide in favor of Eastern railroads as regards their higher rate petition. An unfavorable decision would cause liquidation of railroad securities, it is believed. Action by the commission is expected within a week or ten days.

COPPER STILL RISING.

The advance in the price of copper metal continues. Electrolytic was quoted in London today at 13¼ cents a pound. It sold in this country yesterday at 12 cents. This indicates more demand and a reduction of the supply. The rise is good news for thousands of people in New England who own shares in copper mining companies. The higher the price and the more metal sold the more reason for dividends. Anaconda produced 800,000 pounds more in November than in October. Curtailment of mining, however, is general in all camps.

In Jail a Year for $2.06 Taxes

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Dec. 2.—Friends of Edgar Randall of Seabrook, who has been confined in the county jail here since October 11, 1913, for non-payment of $2.06 in poll taxes, plan an appeal to Judge Pike of the Superior Court, now sitting here, to effect Randall's release.

The situation is made complex by the fact that Randall's board bill, which the law fixes at $3.50 a week, now amounts to about $150. Sheriff Spinney says someone must pay him this amount before he will release Randall, unless ordered to do so by the court. In that event, he says, he will sue the Selectmen of Seabrook, or Tax Collector Joseph Perkins, who made the arrest, if he finds they are responsible under the law. Whoever is sued, it is expected the town of Seabrook must eventually reimburse them, if they lose the suit.

Sheriff Spinney declares that hereafter when delinquent taxpayers are brought to the jail he will insist on their board being paid for in advance.

Many Plans to Boom Bull Moose Cause

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—There were almost as many views of what to do to rekindle interest in the Progressive Party as there were delegates at the opening session here today of the conference of party leaders from twenty-five states. The conference was held at the Progressive Club, and George W. Perkins of New York presided. The impression gained from early arriving delegates was that the party would not formulate a policy for the presidential campaign of 1916, but would assume a Micawber attitude with a hope that the Wilson Democrats would make proposals. Practically very few delegates favored a return to the Republican party. Undoubtedly pressure will be brought to bear on the former President, Theodore Roosevelt, to make the race.

GILBERT GALLANT SEEKING A RETURN MATCH WITH HARRY STONE OF NEW YORK

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

ALL-STAR SCHOOLBOY TEAM WILL PLAY BIG GAME AT WALTHAM NEXT SATURDAY

GALLANT LOSES TO HARRY STONE

By JACK CONWAY.

Gilbert Gallant is today seeking a return bout with Harry Stone, the New York lightweight, who was awarded a decision over him after twelve hard rounds of fighting at the Atlas A. A. last night. Gallant believes that he is master of the Gotham glove wielder and he asserts that he would reverse the tables if another tussle were arranged.

The hard hitting Chelsea boxer is not offering any alibis, but he contends that he was entitled to a draw at least. He asserts that he forced the fighting in most of the rounds and that Stone did but little effective work.

The New Yorker made a big hit with the "fans" by his fast, clever work. He is far from being a world's championship possibility, but he has the ability to conquer many of the leading boxers in his class.

The contest did not quite come up to expectations. Both men appeared slow. Gallant is evidently showing effects of the strenuous campaign which he has made in the ring. A rest would do Alex McLean's protege a lot of good.

During the preliminary bouts a collection was taken up for the Boston AMERICAN'S "Olive-a-Basket" campaign. The directors of the Atlas Club donated $25 while $150.50 was given by the members of the triple A organization, making a total of $175.50.

This was a grand tribute to the generosity of the 2,000 or so persons who witnessed the contest. The AMERICAN wishes to publicly extend its thanks to Daniel Lane, Miah Murray and the other directors of the Atlas Club for the assistance given by them. Eddie Mack also assisted in collecting the money.

LAST BOUT OF SEASON.

The bout between Gallant and Stone was the last which will be held at the Arena until the hockey season closes late next March. The Atlas A. A. will suspend conducting shows during the Winter months, but will enter the field again next April when it will go after the star men in the various boxing divisions.

Although Stone was awarded the decision over Gallant last night, he failed to startle us by his work. He is a good boxer but is not a very hard puncher. He has the ability to conquer many of the leading boys of his weight in this country, but he does not carry enough guns to make things interesting for Freddy Welsh, the world's champion.

The rival boxers did not do much real execution in the opening session. Both men took things even and honors were about equal when the stanza ended.

Stone started boxing at a merry clip in the second session and outpointed the Chelsea youth. His snappy left jab enabled him to keep Gallant at bay.

GALLANT SCORES.

The third and fourth sessions were all in Gallant's favor. He forced the fighting and scored with many solid smashes to the body.

The fifth frame was even while Stone had the best of the going in the sixth chapter. There was not much to choose between the two boxers in the seventh round, but in the following session Gallant grabbed off the honors.

Stone fought in a sensational manner in the ninth round and we believe that it was his work in this stanza which caused the referee to give him the decision. He boxed very fast and in the middle of the session he scored with a right hand smash which turned Gallant completely around. He followed with another terrific right hand blow a few seconds later.

Stone continued his good work in the tenth round when he outpointed his opponent. Gallant rallied in the last two stanzas and had the best of the fighting.

Walter Butler of Beachmont defeated Joe Farren of East Boston in the semi-final bout of eight rounds.

Williams Captain of Noble and Greenough

Marshall Williams, star right tackle on the Noble and Greenough football team, has been elected captain of the 1915 eleven. Williams is also a member of the school crew. The following football players were awarded letters and sweaters: Wainwright, Saltonstall, Batchelder, Woods, Freeman, Williams, Taylor, Edwards, Phippen, Merrill and Revere.

A Fascinating Romance By Robert W. Chambers

"Hell's Ashes" is the striking title of a remarkable new story by Mr. Chambers. It is the first of a series, and we think that our readers will agree with us that it is by far the best that even Mr. Chambers has done so far. It shows him at the height of his wonderful story-telling art.

Another Story of the Ghetto by Bruno Lessing

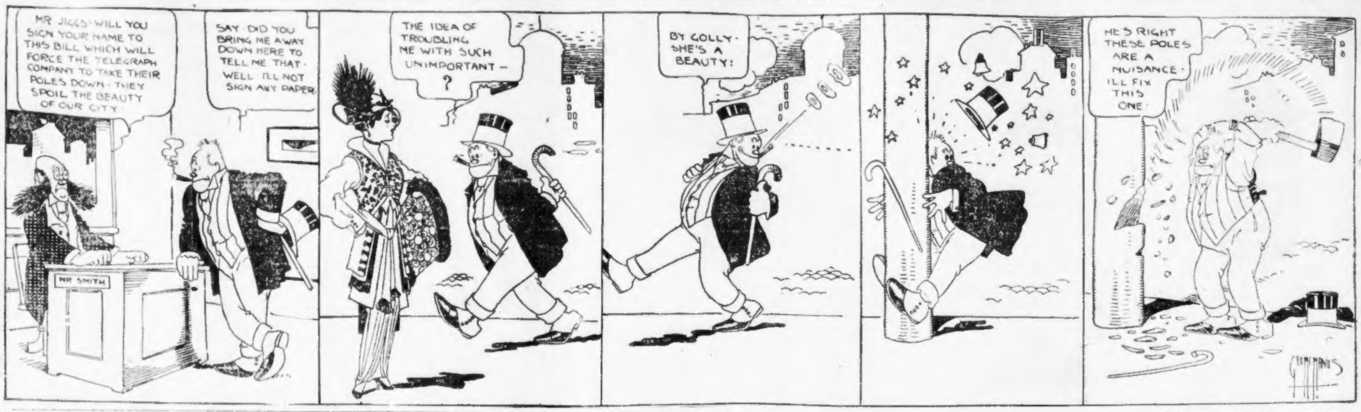

There is no other humorous writer in America today who has a more sympathetic and truer understanding of the people about whom he writes than Bruno Lessing. "The Adventures of Sherlock Cohen" is the most amusing story that he has so far written, and we feel sure that our readers will rejoice in the misadventures of Mitzik's brocaded waistcoat.

ELECT HARVARD CAPTAIN TODAY

Harvard elects its 1915 football captain this afternoon. The twenty-five stalwarts who assisted in the rout at Yale some ten days ago, will assemble in Captain Brickley's rooms in Matthews Hall after lunch and cast their ballots.

The men eligible to vote are Captain Brickley, Fred Bradlee, Eddie Mahan, Hugo Francke, Mal Logan, Tack Hardwick, Jeff Coolidge, Wallie Trumbull, Ken Parsons, Stan Pennock, Mel Weston, Don Wallace, Pat Atkinson, Ernie Soucy, Johnny Bigelow, Fred Withington, Jim Underwood, Dick Curtis, Hank Smith, Al Weatherhead, Charley Coolidge, Dummy Watson, Earl Swigert, Dick King and George McKinlock.

The election will undoubtedly be unanimous, Edward W. Mahan, varsity right back picking off the rightly earned plum. Mahan's all-round brilliancy in the Yale contest established him as one of the foremost backs in the country. His home is in Natick and he is twenty-three years old.

OPPOSED BRICKLEY.

Graduating from the Natick High school, he prepared for Harvard at Andover, being a member of the eleven during his two years there. His first season found him opposing Charley Brickley, who was then in Exeter's backfield.

Eddie captained his freshman team at Harvard and led them to a 19 to 17 victory over Yale after trailing for some time fourteen points in the rear.

MAHAN A WONDER.

To make a place for Mahan last season and to utilize Bradlee's great defensive ability, Varsity Coach Haughton of Harvard sent Tack Hardwick from the backfield to end. The sparkling brilliancy of the play of Captain Brickley last season served to keep Mahan's light under a bushel.

With the Crimson leader under the weather this Fall Mahan came to the fore and was most instrumental in keeping the Harvard team running along smoothly. His forte is end around runs and he is a demon in dodging through a broken field. Mahan is also an A-1 punter and can drop a kick with the best of them.

McVey Bout Put Over.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—It was announced that the bout between Sam McVey and Battling Jim Johnson, the negro heavyweight, which will be a feature of a special show at the Fairmont A. C., will take place December 10 instead of December 9, as planned. The change was made in order not to conflict with the boxing at the Empire A. C. This will be the first appearance of McVey in this country in seven years.

CHAUNCY TO ROLL ADAMS SQUARE

THE City League bowlers will swing into line again this evening after a short rest over the holiday week.

Particular interest is attached to the reopening matches. In the first place the famous Chauncy "wrecking crew" will be pitted against Adams Square, the only team to score a victory over the leaders this season.

Meanwhile Carruth and Boylston will be battling for third place, with an even chance of displacing Adams Square in the runner-up position should the latter fall before Bill Beatty's aggregation.

Casino and Murray will also have a little tussle of their own to determine which shall take temporary occupancy of the cellar apartment. These two teams are now joint holders of the tail-end place.

* * *

ADAMS SQUARE has a particular hobby of furnishing unexpected surprises. This was especially true of the Adams Square team in Littlefield's All-Star organization a year ago. It won the championship, though nine of every ten "fans" contended there was at least three other teams in the league which they considered better. The same thing holds good for the Adams Square team in the City League this season. Nobody thought that it would beat Chauncy when the two met seven weeks ago. Chauncy set up a single string record in the first string, yet the Adams Square bunch rallied and took three points. Now the question is being asked "Can they repeat?"

* * *

EVERY team in the City League, with the exception of Adams Square, has paid a visit to the Chauncy alleys this season and out of the four matches rolled there the visiting teams have only won one point. So if Adams Square gets an even break or better tonight they will have done something that no other team has been able to do against Chauncy on its home lanes.

* * *

WITH new leaders at the helm and several other teams coming fast, unusual interest is being displayed in tonight's matches in the Newton bottlepin series. Maugus, which paced the field nearly all season, has been displaced by Riverdale and North Gate, which are tied for first place. Maugus, however, is but two points back of the leaders, Newtowne but three and Arlington Boat Club only five.

Tonight Newtowne rolls at Riverdale, Maugus at Newtowne, North Gate at the Arlington Boat Club and Neholden at Hunnewell.

* * *

MT. BENEDICT will be put through a supreme test in the K. of C. League tonight when it tackles Santa Maria at the New Boston alleys. The latter team has worked its way through the field and has finally tied Mt. Benedict for first place. They will, therefore, go into the match tonight with all things even.

* * *

MANAGER FRED WILLIAMS of the American alleys is offering special prizes to the four bowlers rolling the highest four non-consecutive strings from now out to Christmas. Fred evidently believes in getting an early start.

* * *

BILL JENKINS "pulled down the board" at the American alleys yesterday with a corking single of 169. Jenkins is a product of the Manufacturers' League, in which he is one of the leading rollers.

* * *

THOUGH he did not say so himself, it seems certain that Paul Poehler would not object to meeting Henry Fallon, the M. C. O. F. League star, who has issued a defi to the champion.

* * *

HARRY COBURN has not heard a word in regard to his challenge to Harry Howard made through this column a few weeks ago and later repeated. Coburn says the challenge still holds good.

Charley Brickley Out for Baseball

Charley Brickley will be a candidate for the Harvard baseball team next Spring and hopes to make his third "H" in major sports. Brickley is a catcher and outfielder and a heavy hitter.

Everett C. Hunt of Somerville has been chosen manager of the football team for next season.

Hogan Salem Captain.

"Charlie" Hogan has been elected captain of the Salem Normal football team for next year. Back in 1911 Hogan captained the high school team in the same city.

DEFIANCE SAVED FROM JUNK HEAP

The Defiance, the cup boat that was built with Boston money at Bath, Me., from the designs of George Owen, a Boston naval architect, has been rescued from the junk heap where it was consigned last August.

E. Walter Clark of Marblehead and Philadelphia, one of the syndicate that had the boat built, has purchased the Defiance and next Summer will see this mahogany boat, believed by many to be one of the fastest of the three American boats built to try for the honor of defending the America cup against the Shamrock, racing again.

The Defiance will be made into a racing schooner. The new owner of the Defiance will race this boat up and down the coast with his famous schooner Irolita, formerly the Queen, and one of the fastest boats of her type afloat.

The Defiance never made much of a showing in the cup trial races last Summer. It was changed from its original rig to a knockabout and then changed again and overhauled. It never won a race, although on a couple of occasions it showed up pretty well.

McAuliffe Elected Dartmouth Leader

HANOVER, N. H., Dec. 2.—John B McAuliffe of Worcester, Mass., was elected captain of next year's football team at a meeting of the "D" men. McAuliffe is the second captain to hail from Worcester, "Bud" Whitney, this year's leader, being also a native of that town.

While in school McAuliffe played at end and he was also used in that position on his freshman eleven. Last year he was shifted to left tackle, where he has been a consistently good performer, receiving mention in several selections of All-America elevens. McAuliffe is a member of the junior class and of the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

McCarty Beats Keller.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—In a one-sided battle in Brown's Gym here, Tommy McCarty of Montana gave Terry Keller of California an awful beating. It was only by clinching that Keller managed to go the ten-round route.

Record Track Squad Out at Commerce

Coach "Skip" Sherlock of the High Scholl of Commerce track team will have one of the biggest squads that ever reported for an athletic team to develop in winners this season. At a mass meeting of candidates nearly 500 boys reported.

Senior veterans and city champions of last year who are back in the squad are: Captain Duffie, 600-yard run; "Bill" Davis, hurdler and high jumper; McCarthy, 300-yard run; Waldstein, Gormely, Winchester and Campbell, sprinters; McNeill, standing high jump; Anderson, high jump, and Porter, 600-yard run.

Three dates have already been arranged. On January 19, Medford will be the team's opponent. Most important of all, the very strong Providence Technical team, which made such a fine attraction last year, has been taken on for March 12. Mechanic Arts, its annual opponent, will meet the Commercial lads on February 5.

George Stowe Will Coach Yale Five

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 2.—Robert C. Stowe has been elected to coach the Yale basketball team. The only men lost from the 1913-1914 team are H. K. Swihart, ex-captain, and A. W. Olsen, who has been forced to give up the game. This leaves Captain Stackpole, W. P. Arnold, A. D. Wilson, S. K. Smith, H. Conway and R. H. Rhett from last year's team. Besides these the class series has brought out a lot of men who show great promise. Men from the freshman classes have shown especially well in the class games and should make a strong bid for the university team for which freshmen are eligible.

15,000 New Players on Tennis Roll

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—American lawn tennis has made record-breaking strides, according to the tabulation of Edwin F. Torrey, Secretary of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association. "Nearly 15,000 new players have enrolled under the rule of the national governing body since March," said Torrey. "A total of eighty new clubs and associations equipped with 1,000 courts tell of the amazing growth of the game in this country.

"It means that the national association has made a gain as to club membership of more than 50 per cent. during the last year. To my way of thinking it is largely due to the impetus of the Davis Cup matches and the fact that the association has now grown so strong that it is enforcing the rule which prevents players not members of clubs in the association from competing in the national championship at Newport and all other of the important tournaments under its jurisdiction."

The list of new members, as Torrey displayed it, comprised all sections of the country. The Atlantic Yacht Club, with courts at Sea Gate, and the Park Side Tennis Club of Brooklyn were the most prominent new-comers near this city. Newport has a new member and rival to the Casino in the Minanetuck Tennis Club. The Alleghany Country Club, Sewickly, Pa., where the Australasians and Germans met in the Davis Cup matches, joined this season. The most important of the new members are the Seattle Athletic Club of Seattle, Wash., and the Country Club of Birmingham, Ala.

Malden Captain Not Awarded His Letter

Captain Franklin A. Norton of the Malden High School football team is a disappointed youngster for he was not among those that were awarded "M's."

Norton was declared ineligible to play the last few games of the season on account of his studies, but had played good football in the earlier games. Those that received "M's" were Doyle, W. Rowe, Foley, Kenney, Crowley, Wheeler, Burnham, Dolan, Trafton, Hurley, Lamprell, Knight, F. Rowe, Cronin, Milliken and Manager John Cremmens.

JENKINS TO LEAD UNION.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Dec. 2.—Carl B. Jenkins of Glens Falls, a sophomore, who played tackle this season, has been elected captain of the Union College 1915 football eleven.

INTERSECTIONAL FOOTBALL GOT GREAT BOOM IN PAST SEASON

There were eleven intersectional football games this season, but in 1915 there will be twenty and probably more.

The intersectional football games played this Fall were something of an experiment.

The experiment proved highly successful. Every game in which East met West was a big financial success.

Yale and Harvard staged games with Notre Dame and Michigan this year. Princeton had no game with a big Western eleven, but it is almost certain that Princeton's 1915 schedule will call for a meeting between the Tigers and one or possibly two western elevens.

Negotiations now are under way for a game between Dartmouth and Michigan in October, 1915, to be played on the Polo Grounds, New York. Such a game would draw a capacity crowd in New York and the New York football enthusiast has been anxious to see a Michigan eleven ever since Yost assembled his great teams of 1902-03-04.

CHANGE IN SENTIMENT.

Michigan and Notre Dame figured in seven of the eleven intersectional games this season. These colleges do not belong to the Western Conference.

The conference, up to this season, frowned upon such a low-brow thing as meeting Easterners. But the conference awoke to the fact this season that the business of battling with Eastern elevens helped the financial end of football quite considerably.

Some college authorities try to kid the public into believing that they permit their students to play football, not for the gold it produces, oh, no!

They permit football just to give the boys exercise. But the sordid fact remains that the colleges do stage football games for the sake of financial profit as well as gridiron glory.

And so the fact that Michigan and Notre Dame grabbed off a nice little profit through playing intersectional games has influenced some of the Western Conference teams to look eastward for games next Fall, and before the schedules are completed it is certain that at least a half-dozen big Western elevens will be dated up for games in the East in 1915.

STADIUM LIMIT REACHED.

The limit for stadiums seems to have been heached in the building of the Yale bowl in New Haven, Ct. The stadium can seat 70,000, and the fact that over 100,000 requests for seats were made for the Yale-Harvard game has caused some persons to predict that stadiums seating 100,000 to 150,000 would be a thing of the near future.

Such a happening seems unlikely. To build a stadium of this size it would mean that the rear rows of seats would be from 700 to 900 feet away from the centre of the playing field.

That would be from one-seventh to one-sixth of a mile away from the centre of operations—too far away for the majority of persons to get a clear view of what was going on.

No one would care to pay real money to see a game of football and then find that the game was being played so far away that it was hardly possible to see what was what.

Exhibition Games for Stallings' Men

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 2.—Briscoe Lord, the new manager of the Memphis club of the Southern League, is endeavoring to induce his old employer, Manager George T. Stallings, to book three games between the world's champion Braves and the Memphis team.

Manager Stallings has replied by saying that he has not yet made up his team's exhibition tour, but that if it is a possible thing he will be pleased to give Memphis the dates of March 27, 28 and 29 that Lord suggested as available.

HONOLULU, Dec. 2.—Duke P. Kahanamoku, world's champion short distance swimmer, and George Cunha, also one of the best known American swimmers, have sailed for Australia to meet the champions of the Antipodes.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 2.—E. N. Robinson was re-engaged today as head coach of the Brown University football team for two years. Earl Sprackling and A. H. Whittemore will be his assistants next Fall.

De Paul Signed for Keewatin Game

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 2.—Arrangements have been made whereby the De Paul Academy football team, in the event of winning over St. John's Prep School of Danvers, Mass., at Comiskey Park, Saturday afternoon, will meet the crack Keewatin Academy team a week later. This week's game will be for the national Catholic academy title. De Paul has defeated every prep school it has met this season, although having an eleven that is rather lighter than the average.

Yale Eleven Will Tackle Dartmouth

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Dec. 2.—It is learned at Yale football headquarters that the Elis will offer a place on the 1915 schedule to Dartmouth. The proposed game is to be played in the new bowl.

Yale has never met Dartmouth in football and it is expected that the game would draw a large crowd, as the Hanoverians have a big following all through New England.

TUFTS MANAGER NAMED.

At the annual Fall meeting of the Tufts College Athletic Association in the Goddard Chapel, the varsity football managers for next season were elected. Everett C. Hunt, '16, of Somerville was unanimously chosen manager of the eleven. Daniel Cameron, '17, of Arlington was elected assistant manager.

MARYLAND GETS 112 RACING DAYS

BALTIMORE, Dec. 2.—According to present indications there will be 112 racing days on the mile ovals in Maryland next year, forty-six in the Spring and sixty-six in the Fall. It is believed that the Bowie track will be given the dates formerly held by Jamestown. The new Bowie track will open the season April 1 and close it the last fifteen days in November. The probable racing dates next year are as follows:

Spring—April 1-17 (15 days), Bowie; April 19 to May 5 (15 days), Havre de Grace; May 6-24 (16 days), Pimlico.

Fall—September 14-30 (15 days), Havre de Grace; October 1-31 (26 days), Laurel; November 1-11 (10 days), Pimlico; November 12-29 (15 days), Bowie.

Ed Walsh's Brother After "Iron" Title

Marty Walsh, a young brother of Ed Walsh, who for years has been one of the idols of the Chicago fans, has been signed to pitch for the Brooklyn Federals next season.

Walsh during the past season, as star twirler of the Bridgeport team of the Eastern Association, made a record that stamps him as one of the greatest youngsters that has gone to the mound in recent years. His performance showed him to be possessed of skill, headwork and endurance.

Young Walsh is a strapping big fellow of powerful physique, a natural athlete, and of such untiring calibre that he has the record of having twirled two winning games in one afternoon.

Throughout New England he has been dubbed the "iron man," because of his ability to pitch almost daily. During the season as a member of the Bridgeport team Walsh pitched sixteen games, of which he won thirteen and lost three.

Reynolds Named Manager at B. C.

Francis A. Reynolds, '16, has been appointed manager of the Boston College varsity football team for the season of 1915. Reynolds acted as assistant manager this year and he is one of the most popular men in the junior class. During his high school career he played baseball for four years, holding down the initial sack for the B. C. H. team.

Annex Eleven to Play Old Rivals

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 2.—A game of football has been arranged for Sunday, Dec. 13, between the Remingston-Yosts of this city and the strong Annex eleven of New Haven, which counts among its players Ghee, Louden and Kelly of Dartmouth and Ostregen of Holy Cross. Last year's annual game, played two weeks earlier than this season, resulted in a 3 to 0 victory for the Annex eleven.

West End House to Play U. S.S. Brooklyn

The West End House basketball team will open its season Saturday night when it plays the five from the U. S. S. Brooklyn at the Ward Room on Blossom street. The West End House is represented by exceptionally fast players, including Dave Klein and Max Bikofsky, forwards; Manns Eggis, centre, and Murphy, Levine and Korolick, backs. St. John's Eleven Leaves Boston to Meet Chicago Team

St. John's Preparatory School football squad, under the leadership of Brother Thomas and Coach Carroll, will leave the South Station this afternoon for Chicago, where they will battle the De Paul Academy on the field next Saturday. Sixteen men will be taken in the squad.

Final practice was given the team and the boys from Danvers feel confident of winning the final battle of the season.

The school faculty received a telegram from the Chicago officials that Lieutenant Hackett of the army would referee the game; Benbrook of Michigan, umpire, and Eckersall of Chicago, head linesman. Lieutenant Hackett officiated at the Harvard-Michigan game and is considered one of the best officials of the West.

The lineup as arranged for the battle will be: Left end, Powers; left tackle, Coan; left guard, Creed; centre, McLaughlin; right guard, Lionna; right tackle, Murphy; right end, Magle; quarter, Higgins; left back, McCarthy; fullback, Hutch, and right back, Smith. The subs to be taken on the trip are Flynn, Regan, McCormack, Herdesford and Kennedy.

HARVARD HOCKEY DATES ARRANGED

Harvard has practically completed its hockey schedule for the coming season and will engage the best sevens that can be obtained for meetings on the Boston Arena surface.

The opening gun of the campaign will be fired on Wednesday, December 16, when the Winsorites will cross sticks with the Tech seven. Both teams will then have been on the ice nearly a fortnight.

It is very likely that the squad will take flight over New York way for the Christmas holidays, indulging in practice games with the New York teams in the Amateur League.

Toronto University will probably face Harvard in the first match on its return, and the second team to come to the Arena will be Cornell, due on Saturday, January 9.

A week later, the first of the annual three-game series with Princeton will be inaugurated at the St. Nicholas Rink in New York. The teams play in Boston the following Saturday, and also meet in the Hub on February 13 if a deciding game is necessary.

Yale, Harvard's greatest rival, is entertained in the first match in their set on Saturday, January 30. The second mingling falls to Washington's Birthday at New Haven, and either the City of Elms or New York will stage the deciding mixup on February 27.

Dartmouth will meet Claflin's charges on the St. Botolph surface on Wednesday, January 20, and McGill will be entertained on Friday, February 5, the night preceding the annual B. A. A. indoor track carnival.

Williams, Columbia and the Amherst Aggies are other prospective Crimson opponents.

Welsh to Aid Widows and Orphans of Wales

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—In order to relieve the suffering of the widows and orphans left destitute by the war, Freddie Welsh, the lightweight champion boxer of the world, will hold a big athletic carnival at Madison Square Garden some time in January. The receipts will be used to purchase food and clothing for the wives and children of the Welsh soldiers who were killed in the war. Welsh will make this a specific benefit for the Welsh people, as he was born in Wales.

Welsh has applied to Manager Wellman of Madison Square Garden for a suitable date on which to hold the tournament. Welsh hopes to clear at least $5,000 for this charity. The program calls for boxing, wrestling and track and field sports.

Welsh has selected January for his athletic carnival because he will be busy this month with many boxing bouts.

Oliver Ames Five to Play Twenty Games

The Oliver Ames High School basketball team will open its season on December 12. The team will be coached by Harry S. Pratt, the former Brown University star. The schedule follows:

Dec. 2, open date; Dec. 19, Foxboro at North Easton; Dec. 29, Weymouth at Weymouth.

Jan. 1, Rockland at North Easton; Jan. 8, Weymouth at North Easton; Jan. 16, Mansfield at Mansfield; Jan. 19, Rockland at Rockland; Jan. 23, Bridgewater at North Easton; Jan. 28, Foxboro at Foxboro.

Feb. 3, Mansfield at North Easton; Feb. 6, Thayer Academy of Braintree at North Easton (pending); Feb. 19, Bridgewater at Bridgewater; Feb. 24, East Bridgewater at East Bridgewater.

Two games with Holbrook, Randolph and Whitman are also being arranged, making a total of twenty contests.

NEW YORK PLANS BOXING CHANGES

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—It seems to be the general impression that the boxing commission will be revamped and revised by the new Governor as soon as he takes office. Mr. Whitman has been quoted as saying that he has no intention of interfering with the game itself, but that he favors a paid commission. A shake-up is therefore regarded as certain.

About as good a suggestion as any that has been offered is that of having a one-man government of the game. The difficulty might be in finding the right man, but once found the right man could do quite a lot o' work in the way of making improvements here in New York city.

The right man could keep himself fairly well occupied in editing and blue penciling matches where they are palpably uneven, and in making boxing clubs live up to their obligations to patrons when they advertise a match.

The homes of some of these boxing clubs and the arrangement and conduct thereof might receive the right man's attention to the vast profit of the game, to say nothing of such incidental matters as prices of admission and boxing weights.

A one-man supervisor vested with the same authority as is vested in a president of a baseball league, for instance, would do away with a lot of red tape and delay in getting action. He could hold his meetings right under his hat wherever he happened to be, and there is no good reason why in the course of a comparatively short time the right man should not uplift boxing several inches.

Applications from the right man are therefore in order.

Warren Actually Agrees to Helen's Plan to Give a Dancing Party

Copyright, 1914, International News Service.

"BUT, Warren, I really think we ought to do something! we have enjoyed other people's hospitality for so long, we really ought to return it in some way, dear."

Helen was seated in one of the chairs at the little card table in the centre of the room, and she looked up at Warren as she spoke. Mr. and Mrs. Stevens were coming in to play cards, and Helen had taken the opportunity before they arrived to speak to Warren about entertaining in some way during the Winter.

"I don't see that we have accepted so much from people," said Warren, with his customary combativeness. "We have had dinner a couple of times with people, and we have returned it. I don't remember anything else of any importance."

"Not the Stevens' big affair and Mrs. Dalton's reception, and the theatre party that Bob and Louise had"—

"Bob and Louise are in the family," interrupted Warren. "I don't see why you always want to accept these invitations, if you feel that you have to have an uncomfortable affair like that yourself. I'll never forget that crush at Mrs. Dalton's. Not for me, that kind of thing."

Helen laughed at the remembrance of Warren that night.

"Well, you see, she invited too many people for the size of her house."

"I should think she did!"

"But that doesn't take away from the fact that she did entertain, dear."

"Well, what is it you want me to say? Hurry up! Here I am—spring it on me."

"Warren, don't be ridiculous. I was simply asking your opinion about entertaining."

"And I gave it to you; now it is all settled?"

"Oh, Warren, you are dreadful tonight. It isn't settled, because we really must do something this Winter."

"All right," finally after a short silence, "I'll leave it to you, only don't drag me in on it."

"But, dear, you'll have to be here."

"Why don't you give an afternoon affair?"

"And leave out all the men?"

"Sure. I can patch up things with them at any time."

Helen sat and thought for a few moments. Warren was in a good mood, and, although it was a splendid opportunity for her, still she hated to take advantage of it. She really could give an afternoon affair, and, if Warren wanted it that way, why not? She glanced over at Warren, smoking comfortably. After all she had no right to make him uncomfortable. Secretly she had longed to give a dance, but she dreaded to broach the subject for fear of what Warren would say. Warren knocked the ashes off his cigar and looked at her expectantly.

"Well," he said, slowly, "what have you got up your sleeve now? Something, I'll warrant."

HELEN SUGGESTS HAVING A DANCE AT HOME

"I'm afraid to tell you what it is," said Helen impulsively.

"Afraid? That's something new, isn't it? Come on, now, I'm curious."

"Well, you remember how much you are enjoying the dancing class dear? Well, I thought perhaps we might have a dance. We could hire a victrola or borrow Louise's, and we might make it very informal, something you would like, and," Helen stopped for breath and to see the effect of her statement on Warren. He was actually not angry.

"Warren, aren't you angry? I was afraid you would be furious at such a suggestion. But you know, dear, you don't have to even think of it if you don't want to—it was just an idea of mine."

"I don't think it's such a bad idea," said Warren, after a few minutes. "If you're bound to entertain we might as well do it that way as any other."

Helen could not believe her ears.

"What's the matter? Are you so surprised? Perhaps you don't think I can dance well enough."

"Warren, you know it wasn't that. I'm surprised, that's all. Why dear, I never thought you'd be willing, and it will be such fun."

"When shall we have it—around the holiday time?"

"I think that would be wise."

"Well, are you going to send out invitations or what?"

"What do you think, dear? I think we ought to have it informal; it will be more fun that way. Oh, there's the bell. Will you answer it? Nora has gone out."

A moment later Warren had admitted the Stevenses. Helen took Mrs. Stevens into her room to take off her things. Her mind was on the subject of the dance, however, and she looked rather abstracted. Mrs. Stevens, fluffing up her hair at the glass, looked at her smilingly.

"What's the matter? Got something on your mind?"

Helen laughed. She wondered if Warren would mind if she mentioned it to Mrs. Stevens. She decided to wait, and laughed off the remark.

"I have a lot on my mind," she explained as they went out into the living room. "Winifred is going to pose in those tableaux this week, and that has to be thought of. Did you know that little Joan Richards is going to pose as the Blue Boy?"

"I had heard she was. Mrs. Dalton was saying something about it. By the way, are you coming out to the dancing class tomorrow night? How do you like the fox trot?"

WARREN GRINS AT THE MERE SUGGESTION

Helen looked at Warren across the table and smiled. Warren was grinning broadly.

"Now, what does this mean? You two have something between you. Let us in on it," said Mr. Stevens.

"I told Helen I thought she had something on her mind," said Mrs. Stevens, proud of her guess.

"Well," said Warren finally, as he shuffled the cards, "Helen and I are thinking of giving an informal dance around the holidays. What do you think about it?"

"Bully," said Mrs. Stevens.

"Just wonderful," said Mrs. Stevens, properly enthusiastic. "My dear, I never heard of anything so nice. Whatever made you think of it?"

"Well, we wanted to do something, and I had thought of this for some time. It will be fun, don't you think?"

"Fun—I should say so: do have a dance."

"We will," explained Warren. "Helen thought that would be fun. We'll have to brush up a little before then, eh, Stevens?"

"You'll be the first people in our crowd to give a dance," said Mrs. Stevens; "everybody will be crazy about it."

"Yes, I'm so excited about it I don't see how I'm going to keep my mind on a bridge game," said Mr. Stevens.

"Oh, here's a little proposal, Stevens, to help you keep your mind on the game," said Warren promptly. "I meant to mention it the last time we played, but it slipped my mind. How about the losers standing for a dinner and the theatre some time within the next six weeks?"

"I'm game, old man," agreed Mr. Stevens.

"We'll have to put a time limit on it; let's say Christmas Eve."

"Oh, no, Warren, not Christmas Eve. Remember Winifred is here, and she will want to hang up her stocking. We must be home that night, dear."

"Of course you must," said Mrs. Stevens, "let's say the day after Christmas."

"The day after Christmas it is," said Warren. "Believe me, you people will have to play up some if you want to win that bet. Mrs. Stevens and I are 'way ahead."

Helen smiled encouragingly across the table. "Never mind, we're the best dancers," she announced proudly.

"Not while I'm around," put in Warren; "bid on your hand."

How to Keep the Beauty of Youth

The Charming Julia Sanderson Gives Her Ideas on This Elusive Secret

Two poses of the versatile Julia Sanderson.

By Julia Sanderson

The Beautiful Star in "The Girl From Utah."

GIRLHOOD cherishes close to her heart the most wonderful beauty secret in the world, and its keynote is simplicity. There isn't another thing in the world so lovely as to be just a girl; to the young there are no barred gates, there is nothing that may not be accomplished. And so, girls, leave so-called "beauty restorers" to the people who are no longer young and who must fight to keep their youth, and be just girlish and simple.

The most noticeable thing about the young girl of today is her hair. Why will the prettiest girls make scarecrows of themselves with the most extreme and ridiculous head dresses they can effect? Oftentimes a very young girl adds ten years to her age simply through the way she arranges her hair, and it does seem such a pity.

If a girl has a beautiful head, the hair is prettiest arranged closed to it. The boyish type of head dress, which has been so popular of late, is beautiful because it is so simple. The hair is parted on the side and pulled softly back with the natural waves of the hair over the forehead and around the ears.

The back of the hair may be arranged in a simple twist or may be fixed in a new way, which is very soft and pretty, because it draws the hair away from the nape of the neck where youth is so very evident, particularly with the curly-haired young woman.

After the front part of the hair is arranged the hair is rolled softly under, somewhat in the same way that the French twist is rolled, only this roll is right across the back of the head and does not give the long line that so very few people can wear effectively.

If the lines of a girl's head are not classic the hair should be arranged as loosely as possible. A general idea of the shape of a girl's head goes a great way in determining the arranging of the hair. If the head is round the hair should be drawn to the back with as little hair on the side as possible, and perhaps a higher arrangement of the head, although this is never as youthful. If the head is long, the hair should be worn fluffed at the ears, so as to broaden the face.

There is something about the hair over the ears which is strangely effective. It means to soften a girl's face, to make it more feminine. Only the very perfect face can stand the skinned cat appearance that the twist gives to the entire head, when the hair is drawn severely away from the ears. On the very beautiful girl with flawless features the effect is novel, even attractive. On the ordinary girl with girlishly pretty features, the effect is absurd, extreme and looks like aping; a style that is entirely unbecoming just to be fashionable.

Just a word about hats, because, of course, we may not run around bare headed, youthful as it is. Again, head shapes are important, fundamentally. The round face girl should always wear the hats with brims, while the girl with the long face may wear the turbans. Hats should be simple in shape, the little tri-corned hats are adorable for girls, they seem to emanate youth, and are becoming to the most hard to please.

Above all though, have very little trimming on your hats; over trimmed hats are impossible, particularly for the young. Notice that these days many of the older people are wearing simple hats, while the young girls are all over-dressed and top-heavy.

Don't throw aside your heritage or youth, girls, but take these few simple remedies to heart and profit by them. Make your girlhood a thing of inestimable value, and remember that you are judged by strangers entirely from your appearance.

THE FORTUNES OF FANNY

Mr. Crandall Singles Out Fanny to Wait on Him in the Manicure Shop

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER XIII.

Copyright, 1914, by Star Company

A WEEK later the man who had spoken to Fanny Hedden on his last visit to the Beauty Parlors came to Madame Ridetti's establishment again. In spite of Fanny's expressed intention not to "let anything get by" her, she did not come forward as this one of Henrietta Burns' customers entered.

She felt a sudden failure of courage and determination. Perhaps she was afraid of Miss Burns' wrath; perhaps she shrank from putting herself in the position of a usurper; perhaps she had an instinctive recoil from forcing herself on any man's attention. Yet she watched with painful interest as the newcomer, not even glancing in Henrietta's direction, went straight to Madame Ridetti where she stood near the front of the parlor.

Fanny saw that Henrietta had stopped in the centre of the room, amazed and interested at this unusual proceeding. "Jim Crandall," as she called him behind his back, was accustomed to coming at once to her. Josie Smythe, too, was looking on in surprise.

The girls could not hear the exchange of inquiry and reply between Madame and her new arrival, but they saw the momentary hesitation on the part of the woman, then, as the man evidently repeated his question, Madame looked across the room.

"Fanny," she called. "A manicure for Mr. Crandall."

Fanny started violently, took a step forward, then hesitated.

"He is Henrietta's customer, I think," she said. She could afford to be magnanimous now that this man had asked especially for her.

"Mr. Crandall has asked for you," Madame said.

Yet as Fanny made her table ready for her new patron she was aware that the glance Madame had given her was not one of pleasure or approbation. Henrietta had been at the beauty parlors for several years. It was natural that the employer should resent the fact that a newcomer had made such an impression upon a man that he preferred her to his usual attendant. Yet, since he had asked for her by name, and urgently, there was manifestly nothing for Madame to do but comply with his suggestion. But it did not increase her liking for Fanny.

"YOUR HANDS ARE AS COLD AS ICE"

Meanwhile Fanny worked in silence, her cheeks burning, her hands cold. After some moments the customer commented upon this last fact.

"Your hands are as cold as ice," he said, "and you're all nervous. You're not afraid of me, are you? What ails you?"

"Nothing," returned Fanny. Her voice was so low that he scarcely heard the reply. Her embarrassment made her prettier than ever, he noticed. Then, glancing over at Henrietta, he intercepted a glance of anger that was meant for Fanny, and his enlightment was complete.

"I know what's the matter," he said after a while, dropping his voice so that he could not be overheard. "You are worried because you think you've taken a customer from one of the other young ladies. It's not your fault. I inquired especially for you."

"I know it," Fanny faltered. She felt suddenly less nervous now that she could talk freely of what was on her mind. "Yet—it's not easy for one girl when another girl gets angry with her."

The man laughed indulgently. "You poor kid, you!" he sympathized. "I guess you're new at this kind of thing, aren't you?"

"Yes," Fanny acknowledged. "I've been here only a few weeks and I didn't know a thing about the business when I came. Even now"—with a burst of confidence—"I'm not very good at it, as you must see."

"You do all right," the man assured her. "I'm glad I asked for you, and since I did there's no reason for you to feel uncomfortable at my changing off from Henrietta. I wanted you, and said so—that's all."

Some one was passing slowly close to Fanny's table, and the girl looked up. It was Nellie, and her face wore an expression that made Fanny catch her breath. The expression was not one of reproach or anger, but of grave warning—accompanied by a lift of the eyebrows with which Fanny had become familiar since her renewed acquaintance with Nellie Benson. It said, as plainly as words, could have done—"Be careful!"

And Fanny was careful, lapsing into a silence so sudden that the man was puzzled by it. Finally he attributed it to a desire not to anger further the girl whose displeasure Fanny had incurred. He, too, became taciturn, but the results of his musings was evident in a speech that he made during the "polishing off" process.

FANNY STILL THINKS OF NELLIE'S LOOK

"Do you want a liquid or a dry polish?" Fanny had asked without looking up.

"Henrietta usually gives me the liquid," he evaded teasingly. Then, as the girl unsmilingly took the stoper from the bottle of pink liquid and started to apply it with a tiny brush, he checked her.

"I said," he told her, "that Henrietta usually gives me the liquid and polish. But that is because she has never asked me which I prefer. I suppose she thinks I should like the pink varnish better than the other shine—but I don't. Still, I never told her I didn't, because she never consulted me as to my choice. Perhaps I'm afraid of her, too?"

But Fanny did not smile. She was still thinking of Nellie's look. She applied the dry polish with a vim that made the large nails glisten.

Yet she forgot Nellie when the man remarked gravely: "See here, child, you're new at this work, you say; then don't start out by considering what other women think of you. Go your own way and let them go theirs. See?"

"Yes," Fanny murmured. This was a new idea to her. "But I can't do that as long as I have to work alongside of women."

He said no more until he paid his check. "I shall ask for you when I come again," he said then. "You give me the change out by the door. I left my coat on the rack there."

Yet when she hurried after him to give him the change from a $2 bill which she had handed to the cashier he was gone. This dollar and a quarter was his tip to her, then. She dropped it hastily into the pocket of her apron. She would not for worlds have anyone, even Nellie, see it.

Anecdotes of the Famous

ADELINE GENEE TELLS HOW SHE PRACTICED ONE STEP FOR MONTHS.

ADELINE GENEE, one of the most fairylike of dancers, made her first appearance at the early age of eight. When only eighteen she appeared as principal dancer at the Opera House, Copenhagen. She tells here of her successes.

I CANNOT remember the time when I did not want to dance. I have a suspicion that I began to dance before I began to walk.

I remember, when I was a little girl of four, lying in bed one night and listening to some entrancing waltz music.

The swing of the waltz flowed into my feet. I could not resist. I sprang out of bed and in a moment I was executing a dance of joy in my "nightie."

My parents were very good to me. They saw where my talent lay, and from that night onward they let me take occasional lessons.

There is one way to succeed—to tune your whole life in key with the object you would attain.

I know of a young lady who wanted to become a dancer and had been practising with much perseverence for a couple of years. One day she asked her instructor what he thought of the progress she was making. "Oh, it is very good—very good," he said. "You will be able to begin to learn in a short while." This frightened the girl and she gave up studying the art.

But there is no use in being "scared" if you would succeed. I have practised one step or pose alone for months before being satisfied that I had thoroughly mastered it.

Often I have spent days and days endeavoring to express a couple of words in pantomime. And here the dancer needs not only the gift of patience, but the gift of observation.

If you are going in for dancing you must take your calling in deadly earnest. When I was small I was devoted to outdoor exercises, particularly riding. But as soon as it was decided to make a dancer of me I gave them all up, for such exercises as riding, skating and cycling develop the wrong muscles—from the ballet point of view.

Once an American millionaire's wife asked me to lunch with her. I could not imagine why she should think of going in for dancing; and when I saw her I also could not imagine why any one so fat should want to. Of course I know that one of the greatest attractions in ballet dancing is the idea of much being supported by little, as in the celebrated Mercury on tiptoe. But this is only a single condition of ballet dancing, and if its importance is exaggerated the artist sinks into the acrobat.

"Now, Mlle. Genee," she said, "I want to ask you a question, and please answer me frankly. I am anxious to learn how to dance. When I saw you the other night I felt I would pay any amount of dollars and spend any amount of pains to learn how to dance, but—but—do you think I am too fat to learn?"

I got out of the situation by telling her that it is practically impossible to learn to dance unless they begin when very young; and though my friend was extremely disappointed, she promised to give up the idea.

How to Get Rid of a Bad Cough

A Home-Made Remedy that Will Do It Quickly, Cheap and Easily Made.

If you have a bad cough or chest cold which refuses to yield to ordinary remedies, get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Start taking a teaspoonful every hour or two. In 24 hours your cough will be conquered or very nearly so. Even whooping cough is greatly relieved in this way.

The above mixture makes a full pint—a family supply—of the finest cough syrup that money could buy—at a cost of only 54 cents. Easily prepared in 5 minutes. Full directions with Pinex.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup preparation takes right hold of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough in a way that is really remarkable. Also quickly heals the inflamed membranes which accompany a painful cough, and stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough. Excellent for bronchitis, spasmodic croup and winter coughs. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children like it.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, which is so healing to the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex"—do not accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

HER HUSBAND'S WIDOW

VICTOR shrugged his square shoulders. "Go on," he said; "it amuses you, and it assists the current of my thoughts.

She lay back on the cushions hugging her knees and looking up at the ceiling.

"I wonder, after all," she murmured, dreamily, "if you and Gaveston didn't plan this between you. You might have struck a bargain. But no! It's too late now. With a sudden spring she leaped to the floor amid a whirl and swish of draperies and confronted him. She snapped her fingers in his face. "Too late," she shrieked derisively, "for I've got you! I swore Leslie Varney should not have you!"

He met her gaze sternly and contemptuously. "You have got me, have you? Am I any nearer to you than before?" he asked. "At any moment I may return to Egypt. You will never see me again—we will see if that is any consolation to you. What you have done is to stop yourself marrying any other man."

For a moment he read intense hate in her eyes. She recoiled a pace. "You brute!" she muttered. "You ungrateful brute! Wasn't it to help you that I declared myself your wife?"

"I admit that. I don't want to be ungrateful. I did not ask this sacrifice of you. I should never have imagined it. Mrs. Varney ought to be grateful to you also," he added, with a touch of bitterness. "Bah!" he turned away half ashamed. "Why do you taunt me like this? I want to be good friends with you."

"Friends! I daresay. Look here, Victor, have I made it clear to you that I love you desperately, and that I mean to have you? I always loved you from the moment you pitched that Levantine out of the East and West bar. I don't know why you affected me so. It may have been your absurd shyness and puritanism—the contrast you afforded to the other men.

"I used to think of you in Kimberley and Jo'burg among all those greasy millionaires and diamond brokers. Funny how you haunted my thoughts." A softer light came into her eyes. "I used to sit dreaming of you behind the harem lattices while the slave girls were singing their weird love songs. And when you came aboard the launch at Alexandria I knew you were, after all, the one man for me."

"I'm sorry," said Victor simply. "I like you very much, I'm very grateful"—the words tasted bitter in his mouth—"for what you have done. But it is no use pretending that I love you."

"You love Leslie Varney?"

There are two things about which an honest man cannot bring himself to lie—his love and his political creed. Victor was weary of evasions. Besides, her love gave this woman a right to know.

"If you must have it—yes," he said. "I've always loved her."

She drew in her breath quickly and regarded him fixedly. One may have expected something a long time and yet be unprepared when it comes. A sound between a sob and a moan escaped her. She turned toward the window, drew the curtain, and looked out into the quiet Kensington street.

"You love her," she repeated; "that cold, starchy English woman! Think how she insulted you the other night because she thought you had deceived her about her precious marriage lines! Don't you think I would have forgiven you that, and worse a hundred times over? Love!—she doesn't know the meaning of the word.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

"IT'S merely the force of contrast attracts men to girls like that. It's their lack of humanity. In me you know that you have a human being like yourself—of like passions, of like weaknesses. This which should draw us together you—priggish men like you, Victor Steele—make our reproach. You want your bread and butter miss! With as much life as a tortoise, as much snap as a soft-boiled egg!

"Women like me marry because they love, women like her love because you marry them. Come here, Victor." He obeyed and stood beside her. She pointed out into the street. "Don't you feel that you are a stranger here—here in this stodgy, dismal London?

"Look at the cold stare of the lamps and the pallor of the sky—look at the dull, stolid people—and then think of the rosy glow on the Mekattam hills at sunset—you and I have so often watched it—think of the mirage over the sands, the golden sands—think of dear old Cairo, and the noises and the screaming, passionate people, and the smells!

"Yes, even the smells. That's where you and I belong, Victor. Doesn't it all come back to you? You and I are strangers here in a strange land. You love the East. Well, I'm the East, for all my northern birth. I can speak love to you in a tongue that she cannot understand. And you love her—that cold-hearted girl, the Kentish squire's widow."

She looked at his dogged face and knew that her appeal was vain. She let fall the curtain, and, walking across the room, lit a cigarette.

How to Shed a Rough, Chapped or Blotchy Skin

This is what you should do to shed a bad complexion: Spread evenly over the face, covering every inch of skin, a thin layer of ordinary mercolized wax. Let this stay on over night, washing it off next morning. Repeat daily until your complexion is as clear, soft and beautiful as a young girl's. This result is inevitable, no matter how soiled or withered the complexion. The wax literally absorbs the filmy surface skin, exposing the lovely young skin beneath. The process is entirely harmless, so little of the old skin coming off at a time. Mercolized wax is obtainable at any drug store; one ounce usually suffices. It's a veritable wonder-worker for rough, chapped, reddened, blotchy, pimpled, freckled or sallow skin.

Pure powdered saxolite is excellent for a wrinkled skin. An ounce of it dissolved in a half-pint witch hazel makes a refreshing wash-lotion. This renders the skin quite firm and smooth; indeed, the very first application erases the finer lines; the deeper ones soon follow.—Advertisement.

Film Stars Here for Ball
Give Cups at Dance Tonight

Mary Pickford, who will attend dance of moving picture operators, and some "films" based on the event.

More than twoscore of the country's best known movie actors, headed by Mary Pickford, Pearl White, Marguerite Snow, Clara Kimball Young, Edith Storey, Gladys Hulette, Vivian Martin, Florence La Badie, Francis Bushman, Paul Panzer, Arthur Housman, Edwin August and others will assemble at the Boston Arena tonight for the second annual ball of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Massachusetts.

This unusual gathering of screen celebrities is scheduled to arrive in Boston late this afternoon. It will be met at the South Station by a large delegation of the league's members and, escorted by a band, will parade through the principal streets to the Copley-Plaza.

The program for this evening will contain many novel features. The grand march will be led by winsome Mary Pickford and Governor Walsh, followed by nearly 100 other couples. Another big event will be an open dancing contest for valuable cups donated by a dozen film favorites. The cups are exceptionally valuable and handsomely inscribed. There will also be a large list of high class vaudeville.

As for the dancing, the program is arranged that lovers of the modern dances or those who prefer the glide will have ample opportunity to satisfy their desires. Invitations have been extended to a large number of prominent State and city officials. The dancing lasts till 2 a. m.

NEW ACTIVITIES IN MOTOR WORLD

By J. C. KERRISON.

Skirting around thousand-foot precipices and skidding about hairpin turns in a racing automobile will be one of the novel attractions of the four-reel motion picture presented at the Franklin Union tomorrow evening. The Pope-Hartford Company of Boston is presenting the entertainment, comprising the $40,000 film sensation of the Maxwell Motor Company, showing a complete trip through the Maxwell factories and testing plants.

A special trip covering the territory from coast to coast and from gulf to gulf was made to get the material for these pictures. The steel mills at Farrell, Pa., are shown in operation, the men in the chemical laboratories making tests for the quality of steel, as is castings of the motor in the foundry room, and the final assembly of the automobile.

Motor trucks, big caterpillar tractors and other shipments intended for warring nations are piling up in an alarming manner on the piers of the Atlantic steamship companies that have not been compelled to suspend sailings. Whole trainloads of war material are continually arriving in New York, Hoboken and Brooklyn, and fancy prices are offered for any kind of transportation across the Atlantic.

Vice-President Marshall will address the members of the Highland Club of West Roxbury at its headquarters on Saturday evening. The Vice-President will spend the week-end here, and during his visit will enjoy the pleasures to be derived from the use of the new Kissel Kar with detachable sedan top, Messrs. Holmes and Lawrence of the local company having placed one of these cars at his disposal.

The second grand prize race held by the Savannah Motorcycle Club over the automobile racing circuit at Savannah resulted in a remarkable victory by Lee Taylor on an Indian motorcycle. The course was a stiff one, measuring 11.25 miles to the lap, which was covered twenty-seven times, a total distance of 303.75 miles. Taylor kept up the extremely high average of 59.6 miles per hour, winning in 5 hours 2 minutes 32 seconds and bettering the time of last year's race by over nineteen minutes.

Taylor's victory is the more noteworthy as he had against him a field of thirty of the best known motorcycle racing men of the country, mounted on the pick of American machines.

YOUR BROTHER'S KEEPER

"Am I my brother's keeper?"
Genesis, iv.: 9.

You, Mr. Rich Man, ARE your brother's keeper.

And your brother lives here in the United States.

AND YOUR FIRST DUTY IS TO HIM, NOT TO SOME DISTANT COUSIN WHO IS THREE THOUSAND MILES ACROSS THE WATER.

Here you live, HERE YOU MADE YOUR MONEY, here is your home, here is your duty.

The first claim upon your pocketbook, upon your charity, is here in this land.

With the poor at your door, with worried mothers, hungry children, unemployed men here in America, your thoughts and your charity, unless it be unlimited, SHOULD BE HERE.

To give to those abroad is romantic, unusual, flattering to your vanity, widely advertised, which pleases you.

But it is not giving TO YOUR BROTHER.

It is not realizing that your duty is first to your own family, THIS AMERICAN FAMILY.

If you have so much to give that you can find no worthy object here, send your money abroad.

If you know of no poor children that lack the necessaries of life or the happiness of life at Christmas, by all means send your money to children in Europe.

If you know of no worried mother, no idle, miserable father at home, send to the mothers and fathers abroad.

But first do your duty here, help those near you, although the fact may not be advertised in the papers.

A man's duty is to his own first, and when he has cared for them, let him give to others. Help Belgians, Allies, Germans, Austrians, by all means, if you have help to spare, AFTER YOU HAVE DONE YOUR FULL DUTY AT HOME.

But keep charity apart from self-advertisement. He is a poor citizen who can see suffering three thousand miles away and can not see it three hundred feet from his own doorstep.

A Book for the King of Belgium. And a Book for the King of Heaven

May the Belgian King Enjoy His Book. May the Heavenly King Punish Adequately Those Responsible for What He Will Read IN HIS BOOK

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company.

In England they are getting up a magnificent book to be given to the King of Belgium.

Hall Caine, the great writer, is in charge of the book, and we have read with interest the very earnest letter that he has sent to our genius and poetess, Ella Wheeler Wilcox, urging her to contribute some of her thoughts to this volume.

It is expected that in addition to giving the book to the King—a book of sympathy for Belgium, and of admiration for the King's heroism—there will be at least a million copies published and sold in England for the benefit of the Belgian sufferers.

When we heard that our own and ONLY Ella Wheeler Wilcox had been asked, as the American poetess, to write for this book, our bosom swelled with natural pride, and we called our great poetess to the telephone hastily, saying:

"Mrs. Wilcox, sitting beside Clotho, Lachesis and Atropos, all with 'chaplets upon your heads,' singing of the past, the present and the future, why don't you write a poem about another great Belgian book—not the book that is to go to the Belgian King, but the book that is to go to the higher King, sitting up above, seeing all things, and having them written down by the strictly impartial Gabriel?

"We are delighted that you, among all the great literary lights of this great land, should have been asked by the English to write in the book for the Belgian King.

"Write now for the Boston AMERICAN a poem, short and powerful, about 'THE OTHER BOOK.'"

The one great mark of genius is SPONTANEOUS CREATION.

What an ordinary mind does is slow and hesitating.

The genius, if we may speak colloquially but reverently, is "Johnny on the spot."

If you put your penny in the slot you get your chewing gum instantly from the faithful machine.

Yet that machine, to be colloquial once more, "has nothing on" Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

Give her a suggestion, and the poem is in your hand before you can turn around.

You will read in a dignified position, far removed from this editorial column, at the top of this page, the verses that Ella Wheeler Wilcox has written on "A Book for the King."

Gentle reader, gentle editor, gentle literary failure who wonder why you are not appreciated, read Ella Wheeler Wilcox's fourteen lines at the top of this page, and you will have your answer.

There, in those fourteen lines, the charming young genius says more than fifty editors on the average are able to say in fifty weeks.

"A Book for the King"—it will cheer the heart of the poor Belgian ruler.

Another book, FOR ANOTHER KING. Let those who believe in that King and His judgment tremble when He reads that book.

The King Reads

(The King of Belgium has received a book written by the greatest living author, expressing sympathy. There is ANOTHER KING and another book.—See Editorial.)

The Tragedy of the Useless Christmas Gift

The Silly Present Is Never a Welcome Gift at Any Time; but in This Particular Year of Woe and War, When So Many Are in Want, It Is Absolutely Inexcusable

By DOROTHY DIX

THIS is the time of the year when everybody's thoughts are turning toward Christmas presents and every woman is sitting up with a pencil and a piece of paper and a wild-looking eye, asking herself: What shall I give Mary and Jane and Tom and Bob and Aunt Ellen and Uncle Harry and all the balance of my friends and family?

To this woman—and her name is Mrs. Legion—I would like to make one suggestion and it is this: Give something useful. Don't waste a penny on silly trumpery this Christmas, but make every present supply a need that would else be an aching want to the person to whom you make a Christmas present.

This year times are hard. Thousands of people who are ordinarily well to do are in want. Other thousands have had their incomes reduced. There is hardly a person, save the millionaires, who is not having to economize more than usual, and under such circumstances to spend money for foolishness is nothing short of a crime.

The silly, useless, meaningless Christmas present is never a welcome gift at any time. Who wants a five-dollar hand-painted Christmas card with a lot of doggerel poetry printed in one corner of it? Who wants a ribbon-bedecked celluloid atrocity whose purpose is a fathomless mystery? Who wants any of the myriad little flimsy silver and near silver trifles that clutter up a dressing table or sideboard? Who wants the embroidered and tinsel and velvet and plush and satin what-you-may-call-ems with which our friends endow us at Christmas, and which serve no earthly purpose except as dust and germ catchers?

For myself, I am never so impressed with the fact that Christmas is, indeed, the season of peace on earth and good will toward men, as when I observe the noble and forgiving spirit with which people accept the junk that is donated them at Christmas. Otherwise they would rise up and smite the giver, hip and thigh, for having bestowed upon them trash that is an insult to their common sense and an outrage to their tastes.

The average bunch of Christmas presents does not contain three things that its recipient would not gladly chuck into the garbage can if he or she had the courage to do it. Yet this lot of silly rubbish has cost many dollars, sometimes hundreds of dollars, good money that would have made the person to whom they were given more comfortable, enabled him or her to be better dressed, and caused him or her to overflow with perpetual gratitude toward the giver.

And that's the tragedy of the Christmas gift.

Of course there are a lot of people who will say that it robs a Christmas gift of its poetry and idealism to make it practical. Rats! The affection that expresses itself in taking cognizance of our needs and trying to supply them appeals a lot more to us than does the high-falutin sentimentality that manifests itself in useless beautiful and symbolic terms—that sends us, for example, $25 worth American Beauty roses when we've got holes in our shoes.

The hardest task that any of us ever have to do is to look grateful and appreciative at Christmas and write the proper note of thanks; and the reason of this is that you would be more than human if it didn't make you mad to contemplate this sinful waste of money that your friends have fooled away on things for which you have no use and no place for, and to think how many things that you needed and were dying to have you could have bought with the price.

This sort of foolish and useless Christmas buying is bad at any time, but in this particular year of war and woe it is absolutely inexcusable. So I say to the woman who is making out her Christmas list: Apply the Golden Rule to your Christmas shopping. Buy nothing that you do not know to be useful and that you would not like to have somebody present to you.

So far as your women friends are concerned, just remember that no woman was ever over-supplied with handkerchiefs, or silk stockings, or lingerie, or towels, or table napery, or, for that matter, table accessories.

Give young girls things to wear, hats or slippers, or gowns, as many and as fine as your purse allows, but nothing from a Paris frock to an artificial flower ever goes amiss that goes to a girl.

And when you can't think of anything especially appropriate to give to an individual just send a check. That is always received with paeans of gratitude, especially by children, who find a double excitement in a Christmas gift of money, because it gives them the thrill of going shopping and buying just what they want.

We are always hearing at Christmas that it is more blessed to give than to receive. The reason of that is because we don't have to have around us the junk we bestow on others. We can make it both blessed to give and to receive if we push along the useful Christmas gift idea.

LIFE

By GERTRUDE WEIL

A RIPPLING brooklet swirls and foams
Through heavy scented forests roams,
Cold stones to charm content she flows,
Midst sombre, leafy shadows.

Their joyous thanks the bluebells nod,
New life she yields their mother Sod,
Above entwine the kind oaks tall,
Till dusk's dark mantles fall.

Beyond a roaring river churns,
And pond'rous wheel of labor turns,
All prideful of her deeds of skill
She scorns the humble rill.

The dawning breaks with shouts of man
In conquest o'er sweet Pipes o' Pan,
The brook flows on with chuckling glee,
Content a brook to be.

And each performs a needful task,
Nor questions of its justness ask.
So each small bolt in life's fine scheme
Completes the huge machine.
